Lancaster Farming

Vol. 42 No. 7 | Four Sections | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, December 21, 1996 | $27.50 Per Year | 60¢ Per Copy

LaDonna and Edward Biddle, Williamsburg, Blair County, have one of the top managed dairy herds in the state according to a newly released list of awards by Pennsylvania DHIA. This report of a visit to their farm along with the semi-annual association newsletter starting on Page C9 gives readers a good synopsis of the yearly activities.

DHIA Management Award Takes Generations Of Hard Work

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

WILLIAMSBURG (Blair Co.) — A farm like the one owned by Edward and LaDonna Biddle doesn't just happen, it takes generations of hard work and perseverance.

Tying for the second place Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association's 1996 Herd Management Award (Pa.DHIA), Ed said he never sets out to win recognition.

"I just believe in doing the best I can," he said, seated at a solid cherry dining room table in the couple's comfortable cottage home overlooking their picturesque farm.

The Biddle family bought the neighboring farm in 1797 and, in 1896, another generation of Biddle's bought the current land. Today they farm 300 acres which includes three farms and some additional rented land.

Ed took the reins in 1978, and the farm, along with the Biddle family, has continued to grow.

The couple has four children.

Son Jim runs an Agway store located at the entrance to the farm. He contributes his expertise in dairy cow nutrition to ensure the nearly 300-head herd of Holsteins

Evaluation Center Relocation Is One Of Several Options

ANDY ANDREWS

PLEASANT GAP (Centre Co.) — Critics of the Meat Animal Evaluation Center (MAEC) could someday get their way.

Some believe the facilities in State College, which the MAEC calls home, are outdated. Others voice concerns around the state over labor at MAEC, regarding the direction the MAEC is taking, and other issues.

As a result, a proposal was put together in October this year by a MAEC planning committee, assembled on behalf of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture by a committee appointed by Dr. Max Van Buskirk and Daniel Hagen, co-chairs of the MAEC executive committee.

One proposal, among three, outlines ways in which the MAEC facility in State College can be moved to the Pennsylvania Department of Corrections Institution at Rockview near Pleasant

Prices were unchanged to lower in all areas except the West Coast were prices were unchanged. The market tone was barely steady to weak across the nation. Cartoned egg movement into retail channels was moderate to good, but demand in all other areas was limited as there was no desire to hold floor stocks in excess of needs. Supplies were adequate to ample. Breaking stock supplies were also adequate to ample for the minimal inquiry, and prices trended lower. Light type hen supplies remained short to adequate.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
DECEMBER 18, 1996

Wheat bids moved higher again due to fund buying on the board, the cold snap which threatens new crop wheat, and continued rising prices in Argentine. Corn and soybean bids fell slightly lower on lack of fresh export orders and profit taking on the board. Wheat 3 to 8 cents higher. Corn 1 to 3 cents lower. Sorghum mixed. Soybeans steady to 6 cents lower. The dropping temperatures in new crop wheat areas continue to threaten winterkill problems if there is no snowcover. There are no reports of damage yet but each day brings concern. Fundamental buying was noted in wheat pits today as reports that Argentine wheat prices continue to rise and their available wheat shrinks. Nothing new to report on export sales overnight for any commodity making corn and soybean bids lower. Early indications were that China may be in the market for more soybean meal but nothing has been confirmed. Profit taking on the board was an additional weakening factor for corn and bean bids. OK City Feeder Cattle

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK
DECEMBER 18, 1996

Compared to last Monday: Feeder steers and heifers steady. Steer calves steady to 2.00 higher; heifer calves 2.00-3.00 lower. Demand moderate. Buyers much less aggressive than last week as major cold front enters the region. This expected to cause hazardous hauling conditions to feedlots and it's no time to be caring for new calf arrivals. Numerous steers off wheat pasture in supply and these in mostly medium condition. Calves in medium to fairly thin condition. Quality of supply average. Weigh-ups mostly average. Slaughter cows steady. Slaughter bulls 2.00 lower. Demand moderate for cows and bulls. 650 cows and bulls sold with 65 percent to packers. Receipts this week 11,350; last week 17,615; last year 7,065. Supply consisted of 53 percent yearlings and calves over 600 lbs; 41 percent calves under 600 lbs; 6 percent cows and bulls. The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

DECEMBER 23-29, 1996

CHRISTMAS DAY, DEC. 25.

FULL LONG NIGHTS MOON

Christmas Eve marks the night of the Full Long Nights Moon this year, so carolers should have a well-lit path, despite the longer periods of darkness this time of year. The good news is that the length of daylight has already increased by a full minute from its all-year low of 9 hours, 4 minutes. (In June the daylight stretches to about 15 hours, 17 minutes, by comparison.) According to the old moonlore, if Christmas comes during a waning Moon (as this year), it predicts a hard year to come. However, the nearer to the end of the waning Moon, the worse the luck, and this year's Christmas Moon is barely a day into its wane, so it can't be all that bad . .

Christmas comes but once a year.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Recycle those Christmas ribbons and wrapping papers. Most papers can be ironed smooth of any creases.

GOOD LUCK HOPPIN' JOHN

Long-held Southern tradition has it that eating this dish on New Year's Day will bring good luck in the coming year.

- 4 strips bacon, diced
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 2 cups cooked black-eyed peas (or 2 10-ounce packages frozen)
- 1/2 cup uncooked rice
- 2 cups water
- 1/4 teaspoon crushed dried red pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon black pepper

Cook bacon in a Dutch oven, add onion, and cook until bacon is crisp and onions are soft. Add black-eyed peas, rice, water, and crushed red pepper. Cover and simmer over low heat until rice is done, about 20 to 25 minutes. Toss with salt and pepper and serve immediately. Makes 8 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Snow on Christmas night, good hop crop next year.

If ice will bear a man before Christmas, it will not bear a mouse thereafter.

If you find a pack rat's nest with much height to it, there will be a hard winter.

When snowdrifts face to the North, spring will arrive early.

OPINION

The Christmas Story

And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed. (And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.) And all went to be taxed every one into his own city. And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem; (because he was of the house and lineage of David:) To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child. And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered. And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you: Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes lying in a manger. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us. And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger. And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning the child. All they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light; they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined.

For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder, and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Look At Corn Production

Robert Anderson, extension agronomy agent, reports that today's farmer produces a bushel of corn with less than two minutes of labor.

This is possible through improvements in equipment, varieties, pest control and fertility.

Early American farmers, on the other hand, spent between 10 and 12 hours to produce a bushel of corn. The 1904 Book of Corn reported that one man could easily husk 50 to 55 bushels of corn a day.

To help put these numbers in perspective, in 1995 Lancaster County farmers grew 162,000 acres of corn with an average yield of 120 bushels per acre. A four row combine running at 2.5 miles per hour can harvest an acre of corn in 25 minutes. This is equivalent to 293 bushels per hour.

Using the old methods of producing corn, it would have taken 1,440 (12 hours times 120 bushels) hours or 60 days to produce each acre of corn grown in 1995. Harvesting alone would have taken almost 2.25 days per acre.

Harvesting Lancaster County's acreage would have required 353,454 days. If the harvest was to be accomplished between Oct. 1 and Dec. 30 (71 working days), it would have required a workforce of 4,978 people.

To Keep Heifers From First Calf Heifers

Beef herds on heifer AI programs are finding that the replacement heifers retained from first calf heifers provide the best genetics, low birth weight EPDs, and high maternal value, according to Chester Hughes, extension livestock agent.

Since these heifers are sired by calving ease sires, a majority of them will reduce frame size and be earlier maturing than heifers from mature cows.

If your management is on target, these heifers will often be the older heifers ready to breed before the main cowherd.

In fact, one common mistake producers may make is selecting heifers on adjusted weaning weights. This could cause many younger heifers in their replacement groups.

These heifers could be 45 days younger than the majority of your calf crop and may not reach puberty in time to breed them ahead of the cowherd.

By choosing older heifers, you can avoid these problems and keep your replacements from cows who calved first. Good replacement heifers are certainly worth the expense of raising them.

Knowing the genetic potential of the heifers and cows in your herd can help make important selection and culling decisions.

To Wash Kitchen Dish Cloths

According to Bill Henning, Penn State meat specialist, most foodborne illnesses occur as a result of poor food handling at the home.

Scientists from the University of Arizona have investigated home kitchens and food preparation areas such as the sink, dishwater, and draining boards. They also tested cotton dish cloths and cellulose sponges.

They found that the cloths and sponges carry salmonella, E. coli, and other bacteria. These bacteria may easily be transferred to hands, utensils, and work surfaces when a dirty cloth or sponge comes in contact with them.

The kitchen is an ideal environment for bacteria to survive and multiply. Thus, good sanitary practices are very important in the home.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "The future belongs to those who believe in the beauty of their dreams."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

IN THE WISE MEN'S FOOTSTEPS

IN THE WISE MEN'S FOOTSTEPS
December 22, 1996
Background Scripture:
Matthew 2
Devotional Reading:
Matthew 2:13-23

In the midst of the rush and bedlam of Christmas, we ought to be asking the very same questions the wise men asked Herod the King: "Where is he who has been born king of the Jews?"

Surrounded by the decorations, canned carols, and holiday spectaculars, we need to ask where is Jesus in all this? Maybe even in the midst of our busy Christmas schedules at church we need to ask the same thing: where can we find him? There's nothing wrong with decorations, lights, carols, shopping, programs, and all the rest-so long as these things do not make it more difficult for us to find him. The essence of Christmas is not alone to celebrate an event 2,000 years ago, but to seek and find him again as did the wise men.

Where, in your observance of both advent and Christmas can you best and most truly find him who was born Christ the Lord? I can't answer that question for you. Only you can. The wise men of Jesus' day were guided by only a star in the sky. What do we have to follow?

THEY WERE 'TROUBLED'

You will remember then when confronted by the angel Gabriel, Zechariah, the father of John the Baptist, was "troubled." Then Gabriel comes to Mary and she is also "troubled." We may assume that Joseph was also troubled because Matthew tells us that in a dream Joseph was also told not to fear. And when the angels appeared to the shepherds "keeping watch over their flock by night," they were filled with fear and also were told, "Be not afraid."

Then the wise men from the East come to King Herod with this question, "Where is he who has been born king of the Jews," and now Herods is "troubled!" Matthew tells us: "When Herod the king heard this, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him" (Matt. 2:3). (When the king is troubled, the people tremble!)

Each of them is troubled by fear and the angel's message to Zechariah, Mary, Joseph and the shepherds is "Fear not!" But Herod, it seems, is not in communication with angels and instead of inquiring of the Lord, he consults the religious authorities: "...assembling all the chief priests and scribes of the people, he inquired of them where the Christ was to be born" (2:4). Where was he to look for the Christ? Where are we to look?

There was a difference between Herod and the others - Zechariah, Mary, Joseph, the shepherds — for they were awed by the good news that the angels gave them. Herod was fearful because the newborn Christ was a threat to him. Here was a man who seemed to be substantially established in his authority, so why is he threatened by a newborn baby? The answer is simple: Herod believed his position as king of the Jews was certainly threatened by the coming of the promised Messiah. For him, the good news was really bad news.

GOOD NEWS/BAD NEWS

The assembled scholars answer Herod's question unanimously: "In Bethlehem of Judea, for so it is written by the prophet..." (2:5). This may have been the first and only time in history that a group of scholars were fully in agreement! So threatened is Herod that he determines to murder all the male children of Bethlehem "two years or under" (2:16).

The wise men still point the way for us: "...going into the house they saw the child with Mary his mother, and they fell down and worshiped him. Then, opening their treasures, they offered him gifts..." (2:11).

They celebrated the first Christmas exactly the way we ought to celebrate it today. We need to earnestly seek the Christ, kneel and worship him. Something about being in his presence brings us to our knees. And, like them, we need to open our treasures and offer him the only gift he wants of us: our lives.

CATS ALWAYS LAND ON THEIR FEET.

IT APPEARS THE SAME GOES FOR OUR GROWERS.

DK546 "DK546's ability and ease of harvest is excellent, especially on our shale ground. I didn't notice as much Gray Leaf Spot on DK546 as I saw on my Pioneer hybrid (3525). DK546's plant health has been excellent across all my farms!" William Palmer, Bernville, PA

DK626 "DEKALB DK626 had good standability with very good yield – 198.6 BPA. We had plenty of moisture to grow well this year. DK626 has good Gray Leaf Spot resistance and the drydown was also good." Mike Foster, Millers, MD

DK642 "The standability and ease of harvest has been good with our DEKALB hybrids this year. We had DK642 on one of our farms that yielded over 200 bushels this year. We are pleased with our DEKALB products and we will be ordering more DEKALB corn and soybeans for 1997!" Scott Wilkinson, Landenberg, PA

S.I. FEEDERS

Designed To Minimize Feed Loss!

This is done with functional slant bars, low set design, proper pan depth, feed saving edges, and other concepts to reduce waste.
The S.I. Feeder Wagons have the versatility to feed any type of grain, forage, or even a total mixed ration. Four foot high inserts are options to increase load capacity and to control the downward flow of feed.
The Arrow Front design replaces the old gooseneck concept, eliminating 90 degree welded joints, making it stronger and more durable.
Get an S.I. Feeder now to get maximum efficiency of your quality feeds.

Telescoping pole, axle, and tires can make any length Full Size or Mid Size bunk portable. This makes it easier to select-feed smaller groups of cattle. Tires and specially designed legs make moving it easier, year-round. Heavy steel pan is formed in one piece on all bunks for strength and economy.

Should Farmers Sacrifice For Community Benefit?

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — "Should a farm family be expected to sacrifice financially for the good of the public at large?" Strasburg farmer Roger Rohrer asked participants attending the town meeting held last week in Lancaster.

Rohrer asked the question in regards to government regulations that create additional burdens on farmers and devaluation of farmland.

The town meeting, the second in a series called Lancaster County-The Next Los Angeles, was an opportunity for those in attendance to express opinions about property rights, zoning, and the future of agriculture in Lancaster County. The comparison of the county to Los Angeles stems from the fact that 50 years ago, the Los Angeles area was similar to Lancaster County in ag production but through zoning and government regulations, farming practices could not survive in Los Angeles.

At the Farm and Home Center, last Thursday night, Rohrer, one of four persons participating in a panel discusssion about property rights and zoning, presented three dilemnas farmers sometimes face in land usage.

These included a farmer who rents additional acreage to fill his grain bins and then is shut down due to noise level that occurs at late hours because he is accused of running a commercial operation.

In another situation, a farmer's land was used to supply water lines to a community at under market prices. About 15 years later, the community enacted a well-head protection law, which may limit future expansion of the farm because of environmental concerns and water consumption. It also restricts existing farming practices because it is deemed hazardous to store neccesary chemicals and fertilizers in his barns. In addition the farmer's attorney thinks additional liability insurance should be carried by the farmer in case of possible water contamination.

Rohrer also presented the case study of a farmer wanting to expand by building a broiler house to include a son in farming. Because they farmed in an ag security area, the farm family assumed they could obtain a permit. Instead they were delayed months because the township supervisors were uncertain how to handle the request and required the farmer to produce more and more information, which should not have been necessary.

Ag zoning and regulations that require higher operating costs for a farmer reduces his ability to compete with other areas of the country and a whole raft of other problems, said Rohrer.

In an effort to help the audience better understand the purpose of zoning and how it is determined

Dairy Specialist Says Crop Technologies Provide Opportunities

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

MARYLAND — A University of Illinois extension dairy specialist made a two-day, four-meeting visit to northern Maryland and into southern Pennsylvania this week to provide dairy farmers with information on the uses of new crop technologies in feeding dairy cattle.

Dr. Michael Hutjens, an extension dairy specialist with the dairy and animal science departments of the University of Illinois spoke at four different producer meetings sponsored by Ag-Chem Inc., a subsidary of DuPont.

In August last year, Hutjens authored an article for Hoard's Dairyman on the comparison of two high-oil corn varieties to regular normal varieties of grain and silage corn that showed the high oil varieties to contain more fat, and either the same or more protein.

The point of the article was to illustrate the possible economic value of using high-oil varieties to provide fat in a milking cow ration, rather than having to purchase fats to provide energy in the ration.

That was also part of what he was telling farmers who attended the meetings this week.

But the bigger story that Hutjens said he wanted farmers to know is that the possibilities are just beginning, and a good place for farmers to start looking at possibilities is with the high oil varieties, as well as with waxy and European corn borer restistant types.

"The focus of the meetings was on corn silage, looking at its role, and strategies in placing it in dairy rations here.

"The emphasis was on some of the new technologies," he said.

The first 25 minutes of Hutjens talk discussed some of the generic, but technical considerations about silage, such as maturity, time of harvest to improve quality, particle size and digestibility, and some of the considerations that should be made if desiring to feed higher levels of corn silage in the ration.

He used the last 20 minutes to discuss findings from two research projects on high oil corn sponsored by DuPont that were done at the University of Illinois, and an earlier research project that was done at the University of Wisconsin.

The earlier study on high-oil corn at the University of Wisconsin showed zero response, but Hutjens said that was because they were already using a high-oil feed — soybeans. He suggested that if the researchers there would have removed fat from the ration, then they would have seen the results achieved in the two Illinois studies.

On its own, the high-oil corn should a slight milk increase, but Hutjens said the real value is in removing extraneous costs.

Hutjens said that corn silage has to be re-thought by the dairy farmer because it can almost be customized or tailored to meet the needs of a specific dairy farm and help reduce feed costs.

He said that, especially with the "tremendous price drop and competition," and the fact that feeding makes up 40 to 50 percent of the cost of producing a hundred pounds of milk and forages constitute half the feed volume, that "taking a hard look at some of these varieties," especially the high oil, has the potential to make the farmer more competitive.

Being more competitive means producing at less cost.

According to Hutjens, the high oil varieties are carrying at least 3 percent more oil than regular varieties and that calculates into a valuable commodity, especially depending on the price of purchased fats, such as tallow, which can cost from 20 to 26 cents per pound.

The high oil corn being used today has equal if not greater yields than regular varieties, and it also has elevated levels of lysine, a limiting amino acid, Hutjens said.

Achieving the new high-oil kernel of corn requires a male-sterile high-yielding variety and a high-oil gene-carrying pollinator variety.

of the gene, it wouldn't be expressed and still be high yielding through self-pollination.)

This requires about 10 percent of the seed mix to be the pollinator variety and the rest of the seed for yield. To achieve best yields, recommendations are for seeding at 2,000 seeds per acre.

There is an additional management consideration to be made, similar to that made when planting sweet corn.

The high-oil seed mix field should be located with some isolation from other corn varieties because pollination by other corn varieties will not yield a high-oil kernel. Those plants along the edge of a high-oil field adjacent to a regular variety of corn may have been pollinated by the other stand and will not have expressed the high oil characteristic.

While the cost per acre of planting is higher ($10 to $15), Hutjens said the University of Illinois study showed the cost benefits through a breakdown of costs of ration components.

Instead of adding a certain amount of purchased fats, such as soybeans, cotton seeds or tallow, the farmer with corn that already has 3 percent more fat mealbyec fatn The cost of oil, which is fat, in the ration can be displaced by raising it in the fields with the silage.

Hutjens said he was excited about the possibilities with corn and silages that the high-oil corn represents. He said it is just the beginning.

"Most of our dairy farmers, when getting cows in excess of 19,000 pounds of milk, energy is the limiting factor," Hutjens said. The energy in fat is used to support high production, though there are limits on the amount of fat, because it can upset the rumen microbes.

But which type of fat to use has been the decision most dairy farmers have to make. "The high oil corn has become a new choice," he said.

In effect, what he is saying is that boosting the energy in a kernel of corn allows the farmer to raise a high-value ration component in his corn field.

One things he stressed is that there is less starch in the high-oil corn kernels. "We are not adding anything. With more oil in the kernel and more protein, there has to be less starch," he said. The silage made from high oil corn, or the grain if used that way, has to be tested for fat and protein and the ration balanced on that.

Hutjens said that poultry producers and hog producers have been using the high oil corn mostly and actually have some farms contracted to produce it. He said the dairy industry is just starting to use it.

At the meetings, Hutjens said he was interested to see how many dairy producers do add fat or oil to the ration. The question for them, he said, is, "Where are you going to get it? Are you going to buy it or are you going to raise it in the field?"

Of some of the other corn varieties, he said, "The high lysine corn looks very appealing. Recognizing that lysine as being the limiting agent in a high silage corn diet, if that lysine in the corn is going to be available post-ruminally, that too should be a winner."

He said that waxy corn, while "a much more mixed bag" has come along pretty well, especially with having a softer kernel. According to Hutjens, some corn developers are attempting to get a regular kernel as soft as the waxy to improve digestibility.

He said a brown mid-ribbed corn is getting more attention because it contains a low amount of lignin — an indigestible plant material that with cellulose forms the structural walls of plants.

"We don't want to look just at the grain (of corn) but the stover or stalk of the plant itself," he said.

The only concern he said he has heard from farmers using the low lignin varieties is that there are some standability problems. However, that may make it a strong candidate for use in high density plantings.

He said too that with some of these plants, that farmers don't always want to look for more milk, but less cost.

"Things are going on in corn. Things are happening in alfalfa.

"I think there are some opportunities," he said, mentioning situations with three-times per day milking, the use of bovine somatotropin, etc., but the bottom line is that he thinks farmers should start taking a "real hard look at some of these varieties and see. Does does it work on my farm with my cows?

"If we think high oil is the end of it, well, I think this is just the tip."

Southeast District To Host Pa. Jr. Holstein Convention

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The members of the Southeast District of the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association have issued a call of welcome to all other members in the state to join them Feb. 7-9 at the Berkshire Sheraton in Reading for the 1997 annual state convention.

The theme of the convention is, "Holstein Heaven in '97!"

The Friday through Sunday convention is traditionally held the week prior to the adult association's convention at the same site.

Registration starts Friday at 3 p.m. and runs until 9 p.m. A dairy bar and commercial exhibits are to be open from 5 p.m. until 8 p.m.

Seeding for the following day's dairy bowl competition run from 6:30 p.m to 7:15 p.m. Friday, followed by the Pa. Junior Holstein Association annual meeting from 7:30 p.m. until 9 p.m.

From 9 p.m. to midnight Friday is "Food and Fun Night" with games, prizes, a dance, and karaoke.

Saturday morning starts with breakfast on-your-own at 6:30 a.m., with the dairy bar opening at 7 a.m. and continuing until 5 p.m.

The dairy bowl contest is to begin at 8 a.m. and is expected to last until 3 p.m.

While the dairy bowl contest goes on, two tours are to be offered both starting at 8 a.m.

Those desiring to tour the new University of Pennsylvania Marshak Dairy facility (full greenhouse free-stall dairy barn) and the New Bolton Animal Hospital will get an opportunity to tour the 600-acre rural campus of the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine in Chester County.

The bus tour is to include a walk-through of the George D. Widener Hospital, one of the nation's major veterinary medical centers that provides routine care, sophisticated diagnostics and treatment for horses and food animals.

An alternate tour is planned to the colorful "Crayola Factory" at Two Rivers Landing in Easton, Northampton County.

The Crayola tour is recommended for those aged 8 to 14, as well as adults.

Tourists are to see how Crayola makes crayons and markers and how the company names the new colors that get added to its lineup.

The tour includes many opportunities for participants to be creative — a sidewalk for chalk drawing, marking a plastic wall, a heat sensor image maker, computer activities and much more.

One bus per tour is to be available. Seats will be made available, on a first-come/served basis, as the convention ticket order forms are received.

A slate of workshops is also planned. Included are two that will be held Saturday morning and repeated in the afternoon: "Learning to use the Internet," and "What Color is Your Personality Style?"

Those participating in the bus tours can attend these workshops during the afternoon sessions.

Also, in preparation for a Saturday evening dance, set to start at 9 p.m., a country-line-dance workshop is to be held immediately following the dairy bowl finals. Instructors are to be Jen Bashore and Allison Martin.

Herd Management Award

thrives on a healthy diet.

Another son, Mike, who worked with his father on the farm until this past July, helped to make the herd what it is today.

"It was Mike who was responsible for finding the right sires to help produce this herd," Ed explains.

Mike is now working on a farm at State College and is to return to the home farm in a few years.

Daughter Sharon lives in York and is taking a leave of absence from teaching math to raise her own four sons.

Daughter Sheila is a Mary Kay Cosmetics consultant and the mother of the Biddle's youngest granddaughter, Chelsea. Chelsea was the 1996 miracle child for Geisinger Hospital. When Chelsea was only three, she developed a rare form of heart disease known as Kawasaki Disease.

The entire Biddle clan bonded together and gave prayers to bring her home.

It was Chelsea's illness that caused a covered bridge project across the stream in the lush meadow of the farm to come to a standstill.

The bridge would have complimented an arched stone bridge, windmill, reconstructed grist mill, and small lake already located there.

The scene has set the stage for many a family outing, including weddings and the 40th anniversary party of Ed and LaDonna.

The Biddles have 13 grandchildren, and a large colored photo of them dressed in blue jeans and red bandanas adorns the living room wall.

Presently, all of the work on the farm is being done by Ed and a hired hand, Aaron Summers.

However, on weekends, two of the Biddle grandsons, ages 12 and 13, lend a hand. Also, a herd manager is to come on board on Jan. 4.

LaDonna handles the bookwork as well as manages their home and surrounding gardens.

Milking three times per day, Ed said he wants to develop a routine system that would allow everyone to have a little time off. The long days which begin at 3:30 a.m. cause wear and tear on a body, and leave little energy for more pleasant pursuits.

The three-time milking began in 1995. "In 1986, we were getting 13,000 to 14,000 pounds of milk per cow," Ed explained.

Working to improve milk quantity, Ed said they tried computer feeding and production increased to 19,000 pounds. "But, computer feeding is expensive and I've learned it's not how much money you make, but how much you keep that is important!"

With Jim's help, Ed developed his own feed which is mixed next to the feeding troughs. "It wasn't as expensive as computer feeding," he said, "but a lot less costly and production remained steady."

In 1995, he took the plunge to try three-times per day milking and production quickly reached 27,347 pounds milk.

Edward and LaDonna Biddle have both Dairy of Distinction and Century Farm signs to show for their good management.

The Biddles said they feel that good herd management begins with cleanliness, and the milking parlor is kept as clean as possible.

Calves are watched carefully from day one. At birth, Aaron pumps a first-defense pill into the tiny bovine heifer mouth, preventing scours.

At one day, each heifer calf receives an anti-pneumonia shot.

Vaccinations against parainfluenza are given at four months of age, as is worm medicine.

All cows are vaccinated every six months and are also given a shot for prevention of mastitis.

Three weeks before a cow freshens, she receives all of the above with the exception of the worm medicine.

Calves grow quickly and are ready to calve themselves in 23 to 25 months.

Nearly all of the feed needed for this large herd is grown on the Biddle farm. "Last summer we ended up buying some corn," Ed said, "because the summer of '95 was bad. But this year we have a full silo."

Ed is now looking forward to the day when he can take life a little easier to enjoy the fruits of his labor. A deer park in back of the house is evidence of his preparation for the future. "My hope is to eventually have a game farm right here," he said.

"And, I want to do more stone work, build more constructions in the meadow. But, most important is to have time for my family. Family and health, they are the two most important things in my life."

In addition to his farming abilities, Ed has also devoted time to the community. He served as a school board member for six years, was a township supervisor for eight years, and has been a member of the Blair County Planning Commission for the past 20 years, serving as chairman of the Transportation Committee.

Penn State Dairy Science Club Sets Junior All-Breeds Convention

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Dairy Science Club is inviting all junior members of all dairy cattle breed organizations to the second annual Junior All-Breeds Convention, to be held Feb. 14-16 in State College.

The first such convention was held last year and more than 110 youth participated.

The Dairy Science Club started the all-breeds convention in recognition of the fact that the total number of youth in each of the dairy cattle breeds has been diminishing and some youth not associated with the Holstein breed have been denied the opportunity to attend a convention and to benefit from the associations and mutual support such fellowship can bring.

Registration fee for the convention is $40. This includes all meals throughout the weekend — Friday pizza; Saturday breakfast, lunch, and dinner; and Sunday brunch.

A registration form accompanies this report, or can be obtained by calling the Dairy Science Club at (814) 863-3914.

Hotel reservations should be made directly with the Days Inn Penn State by Jan. 13. Call 1-800-258-3279 and mention that reservations are being made in conjunction with the Junior All-Breeds Convention.

The convention falls on a busy weekend at Penn State, so be sure to make room reservations as soons as possible.

This year the theme is, "Milk: The heartbeat of Pennsylvania."

The weekend will be exciting and fun with activities for every age group, according to a news release from the Dairy Science

Junior All-Breeds Convention

Club.

Friday night starts with pizza, a theme dance, and mixers designed so members will meet each other.

Saturday is fun day with educational hands-on workshops. Younger members can attend sessions on reproductive physiology, judging, reading pedigrees, and dairy bowl preparation. For older participants, the workshops will include a tour on the World Wide Web, feet and leg care and ultrasound; or food labeling, embryo transfer, and a linear evaluation with Dairy Herd Improvement Association record comparisons.

During the morning workshops, junior members will be challenged in the Junior Convention Olympics.

Lunch will feature a message about careers.

The afternoon will start off with a junior management contest and a taping of creative junior interviews.

Teams for both events will be assigned at registration.

For the management contest, teams will answer questions about general dairy knowledge, feed identification, and dairy history and products. The interview taping will begin with a workshop on the purposes of advertising and problems with consumer misconceptions.

Juniors will then develop and videotape their own interviews, and these tapes will be shown to the entire group.

Prizes will be awarded to the most original productions.

The afternoon is to conclude with tours of Penn State campus sites, attendance at the Ayrshire heifer sale, or free time at the hotel.

A program is being planned for the adult chaperones. The adults will be able to take a tour of campus and learn more about the World Wide Web. Also, there will be a question-and-answer period to learn valuable tips concerning scholarships and the enrollment process for college.

Saturday evening will begin with a delicious dinner buffet followed by a mock sale. Teams of juniors will bid on "consignments" from the various breeds. Teams again will be assigned at the covention, and groups making the best purchases will be recognized.

Warren DHIA, Holstein Club Honors Members

YOUNGSVILLE (Warren Co.) — The Warren County Dairy Herd Improvement Association and the county Holstein Club recently held their joint annual awards and business meeting.

Among the DHIA awards for outstanding herds, the top herd management award went to Maple Place Farm, of Sugar Grove, owned and operated by Aland and Brad Ludwick.

It was also recognized for leading Warren County dairy herds in the cow-average production of milk, protein and butterfat. The herd made an average of 21,957 pounds of milk, 719 pounds of protein, and 858 pounds of butterfat.

That production and the increase from the previous year's test results comprise part of the basis for awarding the herd management award.

The Warren County DHIA also separately recognizes the most-improved herd, which is a recognition of production.

The Maple Place Farm herd increased its milk production by an average of 1,942 pounds of milk, 73 pounds of protein, and 114 pounds of fat per cow.

The herd with the lowest somatic cell count in the county belonged to Doug and Diane Hastings of Scandia. Their herd average was 111,000 somatic cells.

In top individual cow production recognition, the top protein producer was a 2-year-old Holstein in the Pine Ton Farm herd owned by the Wilcox family that made 945 pounds.

A 5-year-old Holstein, Janette, owned by Tom Brown of Bear Lake, milked in the herd of Kevin Long of Lander, was the top milk producer with 33,589 pounds.

The top butterfat producer was a 7-year-old Holstein, owned by Jared Lindell, of Lander, with 1,228 pounds produced.

Other DHIA herds recognized for averaging more than 600 pounds protein include the Elzie and Margaret Lindell herd with 679 pounds; Floyd Beadesley herd with 673 pounds; Richard Harrington with 666 pounds; Dennis Lindell with 663 pounds; Mark Lawson with 655 pounds; Twin States Farm Inc. with 653 pounds; Rolling Acrew with 651 pounds; Gla Don Farms with 647 pounds; Ronald Hunter with 634; Pine Ton Farms with 611 pounds; Jared Lindell with 611; and Foggy Meadows Farm with 602 pounds.

Those herds, other than the top producing, with more than 700 pounds of butterfat per cow include Floyd Beadsley with 821 pounds; Richard Harrington with 778; Twin States with 775 pounds; Rolling Acres with 765 pounds; Elzie and Margaret Lindell with 748 pounds; Ronald Hunter with 732 pounds; Gla Don Farms with 728 pounds; and Dennis Lindell with 715 pounds.

In other business, the Warren County Holstein Club presented awards to its junior members and county 4-H dairy club members.

Kelsi Wilcox, of Russell, was named the county distinguished junior member. She and two others, Christopher and Peter Vanco of Bear Lake were state finalists in the competition.

The county dairy bowl team was recognized for their achievements. Team members included Christopher and Peter Vanco, Jessica Gruber, Rebecca Gruber, Sarah Lindell, and Kelsi Wilcox.

The Warren County junior dairy show winners were presented jackets in honor of their achievements. Winners included John Nickerson, Christopher Vanco, Drew Wilcox, Kristin Burch, Kelsi Wilcox, Rebecca Gruber, Melinda Brown, Joe Nickerson, Brian Gourley, Peter Vanco, and Cassie Nickerson.

A special presentation was made by state Rep. Jim Lynch to Dean and Melinda Johnson and family of Warren. The Johnsons received a citation from the state House of Representatives for being the recipients of the Gannon University Family Farm Business Award.

The Johnsons operate a 50-cow registered Holstein herd and are actively involved in many marketing efforts and civic organizations.

Evaluation Center Relocation

Gap. According to Dr. John Comerford, Penn State beef specialist and chairman of the MAEC planning committee, one proposed idea has the facility staying in State College and remodeling. Another has MAEC moving to Rockview. A third idea would be simply to look elsewhere and build a brand new facility.

Right now, there are no definite plans to move to Rockview, according to Comerford. The purpose of the proposals is simply to "examine the future direction of the Meat Animal Evaluation Center, what needs to happen and what options we have available," he said.

In the past several years, several informal surveys were conducted with MAEC consignors. What the surveys indicated was that the program was "important enough to be continued for the livestock industry," Comerford said. The surveys also indicated that a high percentage of those polled agreed that the facility needs to be centrally located in State College.

The surveys provided "a very informal look at people's feelings" regarding the direction of MAEC, according to Comerford.

Several specific items regarding the facility need to be addressed. The facility was constructed in the early 1970s and needs to be updated.

For ram testing, there are the concerns of leg and foot information, because the facility has a concrete floor. For bull testing, the concrete floor poses challenges to leg and foot data and much of the feeding is done by hand. Also, there is only 20-30 square feet for each of 75 bulls. That small amount of space is "just ridiculous," said Comerford.

Both species could use a dirt floor with larger exercise areas.

The swine facility is too small for the needs of consignors and is very labor-intensive.

In all, 300 consignors use the facility annually.

One proposal that was submitted by the planning committee in October this year outlines, in great detail, how the MAEC can be successfully implemented at Rockview.

The MAEC is jointly operated by the state department of agriculture and the Department of Dairy and Animal Science at Penn State. Veterinary care is provided by clinicians in the Department of Veterinary Science at Penn State.

The MAEC has a one-time capacity to house 75 bulls, 100 sheep, and 120 head of swine. The mission of MAEC, according to Dr. Ken Kephart, extension swine specialist who is a member of the board of the MAEC planning committee, is to provide a place for livestock producers to nominate boars, bulls, and rams to participate in performance tests. Performance data are collected for each of the species and superior animals are identified.

The use of inmate labor could be appealing, because it would keep overall labor costs for the facility low, but "it would not be free," said Kephart.

"Labor costs per animal would come down," said Kephart. "But we want to be sure we are in keeping with the wishes of consignors and the industry."

Reaction to the proposal of moving MAEC has been mixed and cautious, according to the Penn State swine specialist. Producers and the industry itself are "not wildly accepting it, and neither are they saying we're crazy" for considering moving the facility and using inmate labor, according to Kephart.

But the proposal meticulously outlines the site itself, including fencing, waterers, buildings, and other items. Feed handling as well as nutrient management has been taken into careful consideration in the proposal.

Under the proposal, the center would employ one full-time director who is the working manager of the facility, responsible for the health of the animals, directing the feeding of the animals, communication with animal owners, scheduling of activities, and other responsibilities. That work would be continued by Glenn Eberly, the current MAEC director.

The supervision of the inmate labor would be the responsibility of the center director.

The proposal calls for the installation of a new swine facility, complete with all building, power, feed, and utility requirements. The proposal also carefully outlines the layout of MAEC at Rockview.

Another meeting of the MAEC planning committee is scheduled for February of next year, according to Comerford.

There are no definite plans to move to Rockview. "We're just trying to find out if it's a viable alternative to the program," he said. "We're just examining the options we have at this point."

In the meantime, Comerford said the planning committee is waiting for state funding to proceed with more polling, which could employ students to conduct telephone interviews with consignors. Comerford indicated that the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) was very supportive of the work undertaken by 10 members of the planning committee, which consists of two representatives of Penn State, two from PDA, and two from each of three species groups.

Should Farmers Sacrifice For Community Benefit?

was addressed by Penn State professors John Becker and Stan Limbeck.

Limbeck outlined how zoning is generally determined and how to prepare for a zoning board hearing. Becker examined issues of property rights reform and the political system.

Limbeck said that private property has always had limitations attached through what is called police power, which is to protect and promote public health safety, morals, and general welfare.

Zoning is a community-wide ordinance based on police power, which includes balancing population, activities, supporting services, and facilities by influencing location and intensity of service.

Limbeck explained that the planning commission drafts the zoning, the zoning officer administrates it, and the zoning hearing board judges exemptions.

"Pennsylvania has the most confusing terms possible, especially in the special exemption usage," Limbeck said of zoning terminology, which often is the source of many hearings.

Sometimes even if criteria is met, approval may be denied if the zoning hearing board determines that granted use would be injurious to public interest.

Exactly what has a detrimental effect on neighborhoods is a matter of opinion.

This is to be determined after public testimony, which includes a presentation of facts, cross-examining witnesses, legal arguments, and conclusions is held. The zoning board then holds a discussion, drafts a decision followed with oral and written notification and compliance.

Those who want or need to appear before a zoning hearing board should get as much information in advance from the zoning officer. Research how the zoning board has treated similar situations. Get a photocopy of cases heard by the zoning board on similar cases.

According to Limbeck, the planning commission is not as good a source for this information as a zoning officer, because their job responsibilities differ.

"The zoning officer is both your helper and your adversary, depending on your point of view," Limbeck said.

When appearing before the zoning board, be prepared with specifics on your property such as dimensions and proposed changes. Provide photographs and diagrams.

It's a good idea to observe the zoning board in other cases to determine how they treat people who appear alone or with an attorney.

"What's the role of the solicitor? Who are the people on the board that you need to convince?" Limbeck said of the need to know these answers in order to prepare properly for the hearing.

Becker compared property and public rights. Property rights include the power to sell, mortgage, subdivide, devise, lease, and grant easements. Public rights include the power to impose taxes, take for public use, and establish zoning controls.

While the government has the power to take private property for public purposes, the U.S. Constitution states that no private property shall be taken for public use without just compensation being paid to property owner.

What is just compensation and at what point does government action become a taking that requires compensation to the owner?

Becker said that the goverment may build a dam, which causes an owner's land to become flooded even though there was no invasion on that land. Is that a taking?

When government action destroys nearly all economical value of property, the principles associated with the "Takings Law," should be applied.

This law specifies that owners of the property are entitled to reasonable returns, not most profitable returns. Loss of property value must be actual, rather than speculative losses.

Becker said the two competing philosophies between individual and community rights has no answer but everyone has an opinion.

Dr. John Schwartz, director of Lancaster County's Penn State Cooperative Extension, predicted what farming would be like in the year 2015. Although the future will be determined largely by what taxes and regulations are implemented now, Schwartz expects that agriculture will remain strong because the county has the best soil and climate for farming.

He doesn't see a lot of change in farm size, but he does expect the majority of farms will be owned by widows and large farm owners. He also predicts there will be more outside investors, commercial farms, and satellite farms where more economical farm land may be used to raise stock, which is then brought to the county for marketing.

People should realize that commercial ag needs protection with public policy that is supportive of agricultural development said Schwartz.

The town meeting was sponsored by the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry and the Lancaster County Farm and Home Foundation in an effort to help the public better understand the competing philosophies between individual and community rights.

When the audience was allow to pose questions, Cindy Fairchild expressed concern that individual property rights are threatened because the public considers every change that a farm or business makes is a noise or traffic nuisance.

Turner Is Dairy-MAP Director

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dairy-MAP, a program developed by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences to help boost the profitability of Pennsylvania's dairy farms, has added a new staff member.

Robert Turner, extension associate in dairy and animal science, has been named Dairy-MAP's eastern regional director.

Turner will help maintain communications with local Dairy-MAP teams, industry partners and faculty at Penn State's University Park Campus. He also will coordinate Dairy-MAP program scheduling and promotion in eastern Pennsylvania.

Dairy-MAP, which stands for Dairy Management and Profitability, helps producers learn up-to-date business management skills tailored specifically for the dairy industry.

Each Dairy-MAP workshop features six to eight hours of instruction, split over two sessions held one week apart. Between sessions, participants do homework to help them begin applying business concepts on the farm.

More than 1,000 Pennsylvania dairy farmers have participated in Dairy-MAP since 1992.

Turner will assist in producing high-quality materials for marketing and delivery of the Dairy-MAP program.

He also will conduct educational workshops as part of a team, help teach Dairy-MAP personnel, and summarize program evaulations.

Turner holds a bachelor's degree in economics from West Virginia Wesleyan College and a business management diploma from Chicago Technical College. From 1980 to 1996, he was employed by Westfalia Systemat Inc., most recently as territory manager for the Northeast. In this position, he marketed high-tech electronic milking and computerized feeding equipment to dealers and dairy farmers and conducted training for over 300 dairy farmers, Westfalia dealers and staff members in the region.

Turner has been an elected board member of the National Dairy Practices Council since 1993 and has served as vice president since 1995. He also was among 18 consultants to the dairy industry recognized by Penn State's Dairy-MAP program.

Prior to joining Westfalia, Turner established B&J Distribution Company Inc., a fishing tackle/sporting goods wholesale company in Knoxville, Tenn.

Turner also has worked as a district sales manager for Scoville Manufacturing Corporation of Dubuque, Iowa, and as a sales representative for Weyerhaeuser Lumber Company of Tacoma, Wash.

Know Hogs, Know Packer, To Understand Carcass Value Pricing

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ADAMSTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Dr. Dave Kenyon's not producing hogs in his spare time. But if he had a chance, he'd try to produce what he calls the "ideal hog."

That hog would weigh 260 pounds, have 75.5 percent yield with a carcass weight of 196 pounds. Backfat would be 18 and loin eye depth would be 62.

Because many large packers are linking premium payment structures to carcass value pricing (CVP) for primal cuts and discounting based on sorting (separating the too light and too heavy hogs from the desired weight range), producers can either benefit — or they can lose money on every hundredweight sold.

That's the message approximately 85 swine producers and agri-industry representatives heard Wednesday morning at the LanChester Pork Council's 40th Annual Meeting and Pork Production Forum at Weaver's Market in Adamstown.

Kenyon, Virginia Tech University, told producers that to benefit from the pricing structures that packers have introduced, "You're really going to have to learn your hogs."

Producers can receive heavy discounts on backfat and weight sorting. Producers in this area must talk to their packers and "find out what kind of hog (packers are) trying to get."

By using superior genetics and learning precisely how a particular hog packer sets premium or discount formulas, producers can potentially obtain $8-$14 more per hundredweight of swine.

Kenyon revealed information he obtained from packers in the Southeast, he said. Pennsylvania, strangely, follows in line with what pricing formula information many of the Southeast processors provide to their producers.

Kenyon works regularly with grain and swine producers in Virginia. In the 1980s, he said, Virginia lost 90 percent of their hog producers. In 1980, hog producers numbered about 25,000 in the state. Now they are down to 2,500 producers, he said.

According to the Virginia Tech professor, one firm handles about half of the hogs in Virginia. During the years, several producers came to him regarding concerns about the future of the hog industry in the state.

In 1993, Kenyon said he received a phone call from one of Virginia's largest independent swine producers. The producer was trying to find out how to read a Smithfield carcass evaluation kill sheet, which provided data on the carcass value program.

Kenyon spoke to the processor's head buyer and obtained information on the charts. Later on, Kenyon put together a fact sheet to help Virginia producers understand carcass value pricing (CVP).

In 1984, for many producers in the country, 14 percent of hogs were sold with some kind of CVP system. In 1990, about 25 percent were sold with CVP. In 1993, that number almost tripled, to 74 percent.

What interested Kenyon was whether, making use of CVP for a producer, "does it really pay to go out and spend money to improve the genetics of the operation?" he told those at Wednesday's forum.

At the forum, speakers included, from left, Jeff Arner, Hatfield hog procurement; Dr. Ken Kephart, Penn State swine specialist; and Dr. Dave Kenyon, Virginia Tech University.

It all depends, according to Kenyon. The producer must take the time to look what certain packers are looking for and how those variables will work within the producer's own herd.

Of the packers using CVP, four of the following six categories were employed consistently:

- Base Live Price (BLP)
- Base Carcass Yield (BCY)
- Base Carcass Price (BCP)
- Backfat (BF) and comparison to discounts or premiums paid.
- Loin eye depth, or LD (some processors use only backfat when making pricing considerations)

• Weight sorting.

"You really have to know the details of each system," he said. "It's really hard to do a fair comparison."

The key, according to Kenyon, is knowing your hogs in that system "to know whether you'll be better off with one packer or another."

Price differences between packers can be greater than transportation costs. If the BCP differs by $2, that will pay for shipping 350-400 miles. If it's that much of a difference, Kenyon told producers to consider comparing pricing systems.

Most packers, including Pennsylvania's, use the Iowa-Southern Minnesota prices to come up with base prices. This price is compared to the base live price compared to an average yield, determined by the packer.

The lower the yield is given in this formula to the fixed live price, the higher the carcass price, according to Kenyon.

Of 10 firms that Kenyon contacted, seven use percent lean formulas. Base percentage lean is 46-49 percent. However, futures contracts are based on wholesale 51-52 percent lean.

For loin eye, most firms take the measurements at the 10th rib and some measure at the last rib. The percent lean is determined by a formula taking into account backfat in loin depth.

For producers to get the backfat below one inch (27-28 millimeters), they receive (from most of the 10 processors polled) $2-$4 a hundredweight.

Also, sorting has become an issue because discounts can be steep.

"Different firms treat heavy hogs very differently," said Kenyon. Producers need to "concentrate on understanding the packer's system and how they'll treat hogs."

Premiums of up to $4 a hundredweight are being paid for really lean hogs. On the flip side, producers have been discounted $6-$8 for really heavy hogs. Sorting can have a detrimental effect on the price paid to the producer.

Processors, to meat demands of buyers, want a consistent hog at a consistent weight. Kenyon told the producers that almost 50 percent of the food consumed in the country is eaten outside of the home. Packaging is becoming standardized, and packagers want a product "to fit the box."

In the end, the "devil is in the details" of how the processor determines CVP, according to Kenyon. The important thing to realize is that different packers sell into different markets and determine their pricing scales accordingly.

The large Pennsylvania packer, Hatfield, is moving toward basing their prices paid to producers on carcass merit. According to Jeffrey D. Arner, livestock procurement with Hatfield Quality Meats, as a processor, Hatfield must target carcasses that "provide us with the primal cuts that meet the demands and expectations of our customers."

Hatfield is targeting primal cuts to "fit into a marketing strategy up and down the East Coast," said Arner.

As with most of the processors surveyed by Kenyon, Arner said that Hatfield is using the Indiana-Illinois-Iowa-Southern Minnesota pricing to help establish the price they pay producers in the region.

Increasingly, Hatfield is looking at the "quality of the carcass on the line" using sophisticated technology. The new technology is Autofom, used extensively in Europe. The Autofom makes use of computerized ultrasound scanning equipment that looks at multiple points on the carcass.

With Autofom, there is no operator for each individual carcass — the entire process is fully automated, according to Arner. Sixteen transducers examine every ¼ inch of the hog. That information is collected into a computer as 1 megabyte of raw data. One-hundred twenty-eight predictors look at many different points of the hog and that goes into the equation.

The system is very software intensive — in two seconds thousands of images are compiled and analyzed. The Autofom will eventually be able to analyze more than 1,000 hogs per hour.

Installation of the Hatfield R&D Autofom project began in March 1994 and continues today. The data will be used to determine primal cut percentage (trimmed loin, skinned and defatted ham, and other items). Primal cuts will determine prices paid — and could end up being used as a reimbursement for producers even if other criteria is not met, according to Arner.

Eventually, according to Arner, Hatfield wants to be able to specifically identify each hog carcass from each individual producer. However, Autofom will take additional work to perfect, and there is no set timetable for completion and kill floor readiness.

Also at the forum, Dr. Ken

EVERYONE IS NOT UNETHICAL!

Values are not trendy items that are carefully traded in.
— Ellen Goodman

Headline A — A lamb beating incident at a major southwestern livestock show in 1993 is captured on videotape for statewide news coverage.

Beat a lamb? Why? How could this happen? Who is to blame? What should we do about it? What can we do about it?

These are probably some of the same thoughts and questions that came to mind when you first read headline A. In addition to the questions posed, what was your initial reaction to headline A?

Possible reactions could include the following:

1. — We know people do it. Certain people believe they have to do it in order to win. Unfortunately, the person who beat the lamb got caught this time.

2. — A widespread decree that all "lamb jockeys" in the Southwest are unethical, and resort to beating their lambs!

3. — Everyone involved with market lamb projects is unethical!

Those of us involved with junior livestock projects know that the aforementioned general reactions (1-3) are NOT TRUE! Most of us consider the reactions to be NOT TRUE if for no other reason than the fact that this was one isolated incident, and we have been around numerous livestock shows where unethical practices have not happened!

Therefore, we can draw the following conclusion for headline A: EVERYONE IS NOT UNETHICAL! There was just one isolated incident in the Southwest.

But what happens when we look at a another headline that has a remarkably similar message?

Headline B — At least six out of the top ten steers at the 1994 Ohio State Fair faced disqualification for drug residues and injection of vegetable oil under the hide.

Drug residues? Inject vegetable oil under the hide? Why? How could this happen?

In addition to these questions, what was your reaction to headline B?

Possible reactions, in addition to those formed from headline A, could include the following:

4. — A widespread decree that all "steer jockeys" in Ohio are unethical and resort to illegal activities.

5. — Everyone involved with market steer projects is unethical!

Now we have gone from one headline that conjured up three thoughts to two headlines that conjured up a total of five negative reactions.

Once again, those of us involved with junior livestock projects know that the aforementioned reactions (1-5) are NOT TRUE!

Possible conclusions for headlines A and B: EVERYONE IS NOT UNETHICAL! AT LEAST I DON'T THINK THEY ARE!

There was just one isolated incident in the Southwest and a few problems with the steer show at the 1994 Ohio State Fair.

Let's take this idea one step further. What happens when we look at one more headline?

Headline C — The grand champion lamb at the 1994 Ohio State Fair faced disqualification for anabolic steroid residue.

Possible reactions, in addition to those formed from headlines A and B, could include the following:

6. — Everyone involved with junior livestock projects resorts to some type of unethical activity in order to gain an unfair advantage over their competition!

7. — Junior livestock projects foster unethical activities and have no value in today's society.

Possible conclusion for headlines A, B and C: EVERYONE INVOLVED WITH JUNIOR LIVESTOCK PROGRAMS IS UNETHICAL!

This type of "snowball" effect is exactly what has happened during the last three years. Can those of us involved with animal agricultural industries afford this type of media coverage? Can we afford the impending public perceptions?

If we continue to focus on the wrongdoing and negative aspects of our programs, soon we will have everyone believing that what we are doing is unethical.

The last conclusion is NOT TRUE! The vast majority of young people, adults, parents, leaders, and 4-H and FFA advisers involved with junior livestock projects and programs are "doing the right thing."

WE ARE DOING THE RIGHT THING!

How will the next headline read?

Kephart, Penn State swine specialist, spoke about pork quality assurance. In addition, directors were elected, including Brent Hershey, president of the LanChester Pork Council, Marietta; Jerry Hostetter, Denver; and Nelson Shaiebly, secretary, Washington Boro.

Dr. Amy Nesselrodt, federal PRV coordinator and USDA veterinarian, spoke about the pseudorabies status of herds in the state. As of this month, Pennsylvania is in Stage III of the Pseudorabies Eradication Program.

Thirty-nine herds have been quarantined (16 breeding herds and 23 finish floors). Of the counties, they include one in Bucks, two in Dauphin, one in Schuylkill, two in Perry, one in Lebanon, one in York, and 31 in Lancaster. The number of herds with the active virus number seven of 39. Two herds in Lancaster were depopulated.

Nesselrodt said that the eradication program wants the state completely pseudorabies-free by the year 2000.

York Preservation Board Receives Recertification

YORK (York Co.) — The York County Agricultural land Preservation Board has received approval from the state Agricultural Land Preserve Board for the recertification of its guidelines and continuance of the program.

The recertification, as approved, permits the continuance of operation of York County's farmland preservation efforts for another seven years, according to a news advisory from Patty McCandless, York County's program manager.

Public meeting are planned to be held in January to provide the agricultural community about program changes in the York County Conservation Easement Guidelines.

For more information about the York program, call its Agricultural Preserve Board at (717) 840-7400.

In other farmland preservation news, the state Farmland Preservation Board has also announced this week that Bedford and Fayette counties have had programs approved, bringing the total number of counties involved to 42.

Pennsylvania has 67 counties.

In a news release, state Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius, who chairs the state preservation board, said, "We are very pleased to add new counties to the program. It is a sign of the commitment that the commonwealth has to protect farmland for future generations."

The state board also took action to approve 14 easement proposals for preservation, included among them two farms that represent first preservation efforts for two counties.

The first farm in Montour County to receive approval is the John and Sharon Foust farm, in Liberty Township. At the Foust farm, $41,000 was approved for the purchase of a development easment on 39 acres.

In Washington County the first farm to receive approval through the state/county program is the Chris and Curtis Hamilton Farm in Hopewill Township, with $251,836 approved for easements on 143 acres.

Also approved were three properties in Berks County. The board approved the purchase of easements on 64 acres from A. James and Ruth Alderfer in Oley Township for $127,156; $481,200 for 241 acres from Larry and Linda Moyer in Longswamp Township; and $230,000 for 115 acres from Ronald and Blanche Wegman of Oley Township.

In Chester County, the board approved the purchase of easements on 115 acres owned by the Elmer Mast Farm in Highland Township for $469,597.

In Lackawanna County, the board approved 273 acres on the John and Yvonne Wargo Farm in Scott Township for $436,192.

In Lancaster County, approved was $142,855 for easements on 126 acres owned by Jay C. and Lois Garber of Pequea Township.

In Lebanon County, $253,800 was approved for easements on 141 acres owned by Clarence B. and Mabel M. Forney Jr., in North Cornwall Township.

In Mercer County, $275,072 was approved for easements on 502 acres owned by Gadsby Farms in Worth Township.

In Schuylkill County, $155,300 was approved for easements on 155 acres owned by Daniel and Rebecca Dietrich in Eldred Township.

In Susquehanna County, $273,936 was approved for 457 acres of easements owned by the Chester, Janet and John Frystak Farm No. 2 in Bridgewater Township.

In Union County, $110,223 was approved for easement on 101 acres owned by Mary Beth Griffith and Barbara Mummey, in East Buffalo Township.

In Westmoreland County, $180,425 was approved for the purchase of easements on 88 acres owned by the David Mark, Clay Dean, Diana L. and Carolyn Strohm Farm in East Huntingdon Township.

To date the purchase of development easements on 688 farms in 36 counties have been approved by the state board for preservation. It totals 86,522 acres.

Maryland Farm Bureau Awards Scholarships

OCEAN CITY, Md. — Three young members of Maryland Farm Bureau have received $500 from the agricultural organization to help pay for their college educations.

Jeremy Nelson of Princess Anne (Somerset County) and Jami M. Todd of Preston (Caroline County) both received their award at the Maryland Farm Bureau annual banquet, December 3 in Ocean City, Maryland. The third recipient, Andrea Bakalyar-Corbin of Parkton (Baltimore County), was unable to attend Tuesday's banquet.

Nelson, 20, is a junior studying agriculture science at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore campus. He is the son of M. Rawlings and Mari Lynn Nelson.

Todd, 19, is a sophomore at Delaware Valley College. The daughter of John and Jackie Todd, she is studying Agronomy and Environmental Science.

Bakalyar-Corbin, 25, is in her first year of studying golf course management at the University of Maryland College Park campus. She is the daughter of John and Nancy Merryman.

Applicants were judged on the basis of a two-page essay detailing their agricultural background, Farm Bureau or other agricultural background, Farm Bureau or other agricultural organization involvement, school and extra-curricular activities, future career goals and any jobs held.

The annual scholarships are awarded to Maryland Farm Bureau members of their children who are attending college full time. Two of the three scholarships are awarded to students pursuing degrees in agricultural studies.

Charles County Farm Bureau received the Maryland Farm Bureau Silver Bowl award Tuesday night for having the best overall Farm Bureau program for 1996.

Charles County president A. Harold Walter accepted the award for his county at the Maryland Farm Bureau annual banquet at the Sheraton Fontainebleau in Ocean City, Maryland.

The annual award is based upon Farm Bureau's Gold Star program, which are awards given to the county Farm Bureaus for excellence in eight program areas: Membership, Public Affairs, National Affairs, Information, Women's Committee, Young Farmer's Committee, Discussion Groups and Service to Member.

County Farm Bureaus received a Gold Star award for each program in which they met minimum levels of achievement and completed a written narrative which described the quality of their activites.

Charles County was the only Maryland county to receive eight Gold Stars this year, one in each program area.

A total of 116 Gold Stars were presented to county committee chairs and leaders.

USDA Offers Federal Marketing Order Consolidation Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Richard McKee, director of the Dairy Division of the USDA Agricultural Marketing Service has announced the availability of the official preliminary report on the mandatory reduction of the nation's 32 federal milk marketing orders to no less than 10, nor more than 14.

The 1996 Farm Bill included the requirement for the consolidation of federal orders and the preliminary report includes a map outlining 10 marketing regions that could serve to form the basis for the consolidated orders.

The report was drafted by the agency headed by McKee and a complete copy can be obtained by writing to: Dairy Division, AMS/USDA, Room 2968, South Building, P.O. Box 96456, Washington, D.C., 20090-6465; or by calling (202) 720-4392.

The report can also be obtained through any market administrator office; or it is available through the Internet at http://www.usda.gov/ams/dairy.htm, under the "Federal Milk Order Reform" heading.

According to a general letter mailed recently, "As a means of determining where interrelationships among the current marketing areas area strongest, data relating to the receipt and distribution of fluid milk products by distributing plants were gathered for all known distributing plants located in the 47 contiguous states, not including California, for the month of October 1995.

"At this time, California is not included as a suggested order area," McKee stated in the letter, adding, "the 1996 Farm Bill allows for the inclusion of a California federal milk order if Calfornia producers petition for an approve an order.

"If a California order were included in the suggested federal order structure at a later time, it would encompass the entire state and would include no area outside ..."

McKee reported that while there has been some support expressed in California for the creation of such a federal order, such support has gone no further toward such a goal, to date.

According to McKee, "... interested parties are specifically invited to provide input on the probable regulatory impact of federal order changes or modifications on small businesses."

The definition of a small business, for the purposes of USDA regulation, are dairy farms with less than $500,000 gross revenue per year, and dairy handlers with fewer than 500 employees.

"To obtain additional information regarding small business input, please write to the (Dairy Division at the address given), or access information at the Internet address," McKee stated in the letter.

Further, he said that university studies are being conducted in conjunction with the marketing order reform and reports of those studies are available.

There are two specific studies mentioned in the letter, along with the caveat that receiving copies carries an unspecified "nominal charge."

According to the letter, "Copies of interim report, AFPC Working Paper 96-5, 'An Economic Evaluation of Basic Formula Price (BFP) Alternatives,' completed by the BFP University Study Committee, ... " are available from the Agricultural and Food Policy Center, Department of Agricultural Economics, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas, 77843-2124; tel. (409) 845-5913; or web site http://AFPC1.TAMU.EDU

Another study, performed by staff at Cornell University is call, "U.S. Dairy Sector Simulator: A Spatially Disaggregated Model of the U.S. Dairy Industry."

It is available for a cost Ms. Wendy Barrett, Cornell University, ARME, 348 Warren Hall, Ithaca, N.Y., 14853-7801; tel. (607) 255-1581; fax (607) 255-9984; E-mail gjb2@cornell.edu; or at web site http://CPDMP.ARME.CORNELL.EDU

According to McKee, comments, ideas and suggestions on the preliminary consolidation report should be mailed to the Dairy Division, or E-mailed to Milk_aOrder_aReform@usda.gov, by Feb. 10, 1977.

However, ideas and suggestions are to be accepted by the Dairy Division throughout the entire consolidation process.

Walk-A-Bout Scheduled For Frederick

FREDERICK, Md. — The next Frederick County Walk-A-Bout will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 8, from 10 a.m. until noon. Larry and Judy Riggs of Leigh-Castle Holsteins will be hosting the event.

Leigh-Castle Holsteins milk 125 cows plus raise all their replacements. Numerous renovation projects have been done to the older facilities over the last several years to improve cow comfort and feeding efficiency with minimal capital expenses.

The purpose of the Walk-A-Bout is to allow dairy producers a chance to learn more about dairy practices that are being implemented on other farms in the area. Most of the time will be spent walking. The informal atmosphere of these sessions will allow producers to pick up management tips, equipment and facility ideas, and provide a way for farmers to share success stories with other farmers in the community.

Leigh-Castle Holsteins is located at 10002-B Clemsonville Road, Union Bridge, Maryland. From Libertytown, go east on Route 26 to Route 31. Go north on Route 31 toward Westminster for approximately three miles. Turn left onto Clemsonville Road. Go approximately one mile to the farm on the left. Walk-A-Bout signs will be posted.

Conservancy Holds Annual Meeting

WYOMISSING (Berks Co.) — The Berks County Conservancy elected new officers and board members at its annual meeting held at the Canal Street Pub and Restaurant recently.

Outgoing president, Verlin Renner, welcomed the following officers; President Joseph Griffin, Vice President for Land Preservation Donald Duncan, Vice President for Environmental Preservation Chip Karasin, Vice President for Historic Preservation Matt Barnhart, Vice President for Development Gregory Hartman, Secretary John Newlin, and Treasurer William Koch.

President Renner outlined some highlights of 1996 in the Conservancy's three areas of interest: preservation of farmland and open space, historic preservation, and environmental protection. During the year, the Conservancy has protected five strategic tracts of land on Neversink Mountain, both through the purchase of land and donation of conservation easements. The Conservancy is conducting a feasibility study to encourage the rehabilitation of the Trexler Mansion-Elks Club in downtown reading. And the Conservancy is coordinating the Tulpehocken Creek - Blue Marsh Planning Project as a joint effort with 27 other organizations and agencies.

Renner is one of four active board members who are retiring after six years of service. The others are Stam Zervanos, Bill Hughes, and Jim Coleman. All four were recognized for their contributions to the Conservancy over the years. Jim Coleman, who acted as treasurer, was given the special honor of the Edward C. Edgar Award for his exceptional dedication as the Conservancy's number on volunteer.

Like many families on Christmas Day, Clarence and Arlene Weaver will celebrate Christ's birth with their children, their spouses, and grandchildren. In the center Clarence and Arlene Weaver hold grandsons Kurtis, 4, and Jordan, 9 months. Granddaughter Kendra, 11, is at left. Behind her is Sherri married to the Weaver's son Derry. At right are Shelby married to the Weaver's son Dean, and daughter Dawn married to Leon Zimmerman. Several of the spouses and another son David were unavailable for the photo session.

WOLMELSDORF (Berks Co.) — Christmas at Grandma and Grandpa Weaver's home begins early at Clear Spring Egg Farm.

The Thanksgiving turkey is barely eaten before Grandma Arlene is pulling out decorations to transform the old farmhouse into a regal showcase. The winding staircase in the center hallway is bathed in evergreen swags with mauve velvet bows, poinsettias, and sprays of gold.

The nativity scene is placed on display in the family room. The fireplace mantel is arranged with greens, oranges, pineapples, candles and collectibles such as a rocking horse.

To add to the festive touches, Grandpa Clarence buys his wife a massive poinsettia placed placed prominently in the dining area.

While the men continue their daily jobs during the month of December, Grandma joined by her married daughter Dawn and daughter-in-laws Sherri and Shelby bake about 2,000 cookies to share with guests and family members.

Dawn and husband Leon Zimmerman live in Myerstown with children Kendra, 11, and Kurtis, 4. Sherri married to the Weaver's son Derry live in Stouchsburg with son Derry Jordan, 9 months. Shelby married to the Weaver's son Dean live in Richland and are expecting their first baby in February. Another son David lives at home and plans to marry in June.

Family traditions are strong in the Weaver family. The family gathers together Christmas Eve for a feast of shrimp, corn on the cob, salad, fondue dip and crackers, fresh fruit cup with lime sherbet, and ice cream cake.

Christmas gifts are exchanged complete with videotaping and a special family photo session in front of the tree. This year, the Weaver's will watch last year's celebration and marvel how the grandchildren have grown.

Included in the Christmas celebration is a birthday celebration for granddaughter Kendra.

"I always have a hard time knowing what gifts are for my birthday and which are for Christmas," 11-year-old Kendra said of her Dec. 23 birthday.

The celebration is not complete without everyone gathering around the piano to sing Christmas carols. Grandma is an accomplished pianist and is pleased that the grandchildren show signs of musical ability.

Throughout the evening of laughter and fellowship, a time is set aside to give a special present to Jesus. This is when each family member secrety writes down a goal

(Turn to Page B5)

Time to open presents brings lots of excitement to four-year-old Kurtis.

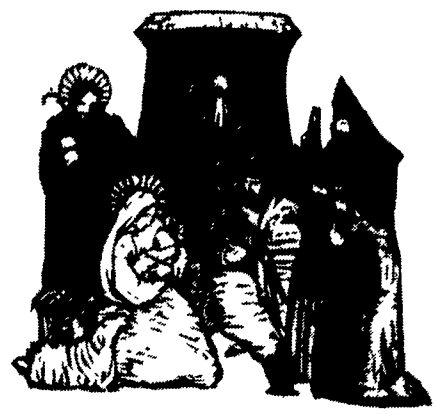
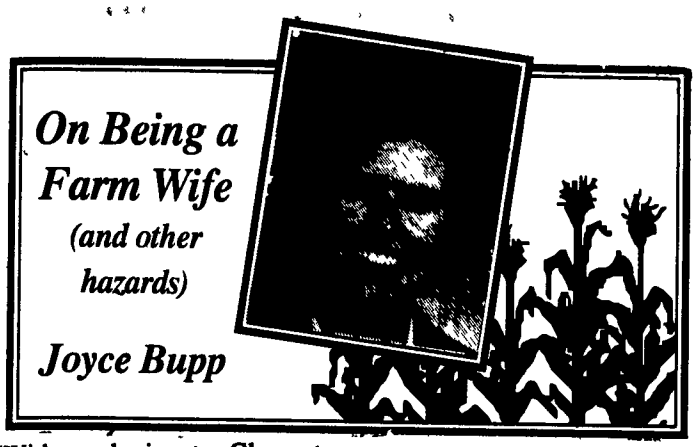
And the Angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a savior, which is christ the Lord.
(Luke2: 1-20)





(With apologies to Clement Moore). . .

T'was some days before Christmas, when all through the house, not a creature was stirring. We D-Con-ed the mouse. The Farmer and I had just just climbed into bed, when alas!, came that sound that we've long learned to dread. Next to the bed there arose such a clatter. When that phone rings at bedtime, there's something the matter. But to our great relief a loved voice we did hear; t'was our West Coast offspring greeting our ears. . .

"Hi, Mom! I wanted to make Cherry Winks and I can't find my recipe. Could you get yours and read off the ingredients to me?"

I headed back downstairs to the kitchen, retrieved the recipe from the Cookie section of the file and, (holding it six-inches from my nose because I'd removed my contact lenses) deciphered the ingredients from between the splotches of butter and maraschino cherry juice splatters.

"That's what Moms for for," I laughed, to her apologies for the late night call.

Christmas isn't Christmas in our family without Cherry Winks. But the recipe is jinxed. We all keep losing our copies.

I first tasted these as a teenager, employed by friends at their stand in York's downtown Central Farmers' Market. Christmas cookies were a seasonal specialty of the stand — and I probably ate all the profits that first week I tasted the Cherry Winks.

As a young bride, I wanted to bake Cherry Winks for The Farmer. But no one I knew had ever heard fo them. So, two weeks before the holidays, I submitted a letter to a local newspaper's recipe exchange, in search of the elusive cookie ingredients. The deluge of several dozen letters, cards and cheery holiday greetings included with the flood of recipes that landed in our mailbox made Christmas very special that year.

Just a few days after the late-night call from Portland, the phone rang again. This time, it was our son's girlfriend, seeking out a Christmas cookier recipe. Guess what she wanted?

Christmas wouldn't be Christmas in our family without Cherry Winks. There are chopped dates, pecans, and maraschino cherries on hand, waiting for the West Coast branch of the family traveling east for the holidays. We can all bake them together — if I don't lose the recipe between now and then.

Just in case, I'd like to share our family's favorite holiday cookie recipe with you. And if I do lose it again, maybe you'll let me borrow it back. . .

CHERRY WINKS

¾ cup butter
1 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
2 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2¼ cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped pecans
1 cup chopped dates
⅓ cup chopped maraschino cherries
About 1½ cups crushed cornflakes
Maraschino cherries for topping

Cream butter and sugar, add eggs, milk and vanilla, and beat until light and fluffy. Blend in dry ingredients, then add nuts, dates and cherries. Drop by teaspoonfuls into cornflake crumbs and toss until coated with crumbs. Place on greased cookie sheet, flatten slightly and top with a piece of cherry. Bake at 375-degrees for 10-12 minutes, or until lightly browned.

Cool and hide if you want any left for Christmas.

Note: Dough is easier to work with if turned out on waxed paper, formed into a roll and sliced off to shape into balls after it chills.

To you and your family and loved ones, a VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS!!

Holiday Family Time

The holidays are here, whether we are ready or not. Schools are closed, and children are home for vacation. How soon will they be bored with "nothing to do?"

Well, get with it! It's time to do some things together, as a family. Strong families plan holiday activities and do them together. Family time doesn't have to be elaborate or expensive. Very simple holiday activites often become the most important: laughing together at family jokes, repeating family traditions each year, or preparing a favorite holiday meal with the same guests can become cherished memories for years to come.

As you read through the following list of activities, are there ones you would like to include in your family's holiday celebrations?

• Organize a neighborhood sing-along or go caroling.

• Participating in or attend concerts or cantatas with family members.

• Play music in the background as your family is preparing for the holiday festivities.

Nature activities.

• Go to a tree farm and cut your own tree.

• Make and hang bird feeders.

• Buy or borrow a book to identify, list and chart what type of birds visit your feeders.

• Go for a walk around your home.

• Take an evening walk and gaze at the stars.

• Plan your landscaping areas to provide for wildflowers, rock gardens, special trees and shrubs.

• Go on a winter camping trip.

• Plan a winter picnic (hot chocolate and cookies) in the back yard.

Service activities.

Make and send or deliver holiday cards to shut-ins, hospital patients, or nursing home residents.

• Shovel your neighbors walk.

• Purchase canned goods and drop them off at a food bank.

• Volunteer at a soup kitchen or food bank.

• Make cookies and visit someone who is unable to get out of their home.

Dramatic activites.

• Plan an evening of dramatic games; charades; pantomimes.

• Play word games at the dinner table using holiday themes.

• Take part and encourage other family members to participate in play productions at church, school, and community theatre.

• Attend plays or a new feature movie during holidays.

• Read stories about the many different winter holidays people celebrate.

Social activities.

• Give someone a free gift every day this month: write a note, give a hug, listen to a friend, play a game, give a compliment, do a favor, do a chore, etc.

• Plan family evenings: play cards, board games, or watch a favorite movie together.

• Make contact with all your family members, especially grandparents and grandchildren; if you can't contact them in person, then do it by letter or telephone.

• Hold an "I Remember When" session with as many of your extended family members as you can assemble together.

Physical activites.

• Touching toes, rolling side to side, sit-ups, and waist turning can be good and fun for all ages and abilities.

• Take a winter walk.

• All family members can help shovel the sidewalks or clear snow from the car.

• Go sledding, skiing, or skating.

Don't forget family projects around the house, or on the farm or grounds of your home: building a needed fence or wall, refinishing furniture or cabinets, painting, landscaping or construction a new building. Inside your home projects could include: catching up on the family album, mending and deciding what to do with the clothing pile.

All of these activities can be family projects that build cherished memories. Finding and committing to each other, espeically during the holidays, strengthens the family. It can be said that families who do things together stay together. They are constructing a firm foundation upon which to build their future. Make holiday time a family time.

Wood Ash In The Garden?

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — If you use a wood-burning stove, you may have wondered if wood ash could be appliled to your garden soil as an amendment. While wood ash does have some fertilizer value (but no nitrogen), it consists primarily of calcium carbonate (about 25%), a common liming material. Since wood ash particles are so fine, they react quickly and completely in the soil.

Increasing the alkalinity of your garden soil does affect plant nutrition. Nutrients are most readily available to most plants when the soil is slightly acidic (below pH 7.0). As soil alkalinity rises, many nutrients become chemically tied to the soil and less available for plant use. Applying small amounts of wood ash to most soils will not adversely affect your garden crops, and the ash will replenish some nutrients. However, adding larger amounts could do more harm than good.

Specific recommendations are hard to give, since wood ash composition and soil composition and reaction varies from garden to garden. An application of 20 pounds per 100 square feet annually, should not harm a slightly acid soil. But if your soil is neutral to alkaline, or your garden consists of acid-loving plants such as Rhododendrons or blueberries, find another way to get rid of that wood ash.

Home For The Holidays

Family members offer a special birthday gift to Jesus by writing down a secret goal for the upcoming year and depositing the written goal in a bag that is reopened next Christmas and shared with family members.

Holiday celebrations are not complete until the family gathers around the piano. Grandma Weaver, a gifted pianist, leads the Christmas caroling session.

When Grandpa shows 9-month-old Derry Jordan the nativity scene, he's intrigued.

for the upcoming year. The written goal is placed in a bag marked "Happy Birthday, Jesus," and hid underneath the tree. The following year, the bag is opened, and the goals are read aloud. The person who wrote the goal reports on the progress made toward reaching the goal.

The Weavers purchased Clear View Egg Farm about 20 years ago. It has 100 acres and 60,000 layers on it. The Weaver's youngest son David plans to take over the farming operation in the upcoming year. He and his wife-to-be will move into the farmhouse and Clarence and Arlene will move to a smaller home.

For the Weaver family this year, it's still home for the holidays.

The grandchildren gather around Grandma to hear the Christmas story.

After dinner, it's time for some on-the-floor tussling with Grandpa. This time it's "more feedbags."

The family gathers around the fireplace to reminisce and view a video of last year's Christmas gathering.

HOMESTEAD NOTES

Home on the Range

Christmas Dinner . . . Indulge

Serving holiday meals can be fun if you keep things simple. These hints can help:

• Inviting friends and family for a meal? Remember, appetizers are strictly optional. You'll probably be serving dessert, so consider just how much guests can eat.

• Select an entree that will shine with flavor and can be easily complemented with unadorned foods of the season. Double the amount so you'll have plenty for seconds and leftovers.

• Take a few moments to read through your recipes and make your shopping list. Don't just consider ingredients—consider which utensils and serving pieces you will need to use and find. Wash them in advance, if needed.

• Set the table before people arrive. The smallest details can make all the difference in the mood of the dinner and how welcome people fee. Seasonal greenery, flowers, candles, and cloth napkins should do it.

• At gatherings, serve a festive punch. The bowl makes a great centerpiece and sparks social interaction.

EASY PINEAPPLE CITRUS LAYERED CAKE

16-ounce frozen prepared pound cake, thawed
8-ounces cream cheese
1 cup powdered sugar
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
1 tablespoon orange juice
¾ teaspoon almond or vanilla extract
20-ounce can crushed pineapple, well drained
Slice almonds, toasted (optional)

Slice pound cake horizonally into thirds; set aside.

Beat together cream cheese, sugar, orange peel, orange juice and almond extract in large bowl until smooth and blended. Stir in pineapple.

Place bottom cake layer on serving platter, spread with ⅓ pineapple mixture. Repeat layers ending with pineapple mixture. Chill at least one hour or overnight before serving. Sprinkle with almonds, if desired.

CREAMY LEMON RASPBERRY LAYERED MOUSSE

1½ tablespoons unflavored gelatin
¼ cup orange juice
6 eggs, separated
¾ cup fresh lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
1¼ cups sugar, divided
1 cup whipping cream
1½ cups frozen loose-pack unsweetened raspberries, thawed and pureed (about ¾ cup puree)
Whipped cream, if desired
Fresh raspberries, if desired
Strips lemon peel, if desired

Sprinkle gelatin over orange juice to soften. Combine egg yolks with lemon juice, peel, and ¾ cup sugar.

Place in medium-sized heavy saucepan; cook, stirring constantly, until lemon mixture is slightly thickened, about 8 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in gelatin mixture until dissolved. Refrigerate 30 to 40 minutes or until partially set (consistency of unbeaten egg whites). Beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in remaining ½ cup sugar until stiff. Beat whipping cream until stiff peaks form. Fold egg whites and cream into lemon mixture. Divide mixture in half. Fold pureed raspberries into one-half. Spoon mixture into 2-quart glass bowl. Place in freezer 5 minutes. Gently spoon remaining lemon mixture over raspberry layer. Refrigerate at least 4 hours or until firm. Just before serving, garnish top with additional whipped cream, raspberries, and lemon peel.

HOLIDAY CITRUS STUFFING FOR GOOSE

¼ cup butter
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
3 tangerines
½ pound breadcrumbs
1 cup peeled, chopped chestnuts
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
3 cups cooked rice
½ cup chicken stock or orange juice

Cook the onions and celery in the butter until soft. Peel the tangerines, cut the sections in half and remove seeds.

Combine all ingredients, mixing together lightly. Makes approximately 8 cups.

Creamy Lemon-Raspberry Layered Mousse serves 12 adds color and soothing taste to holiday meals.

ROAST GOOSE

1 goose
Juice of 1 lemon
Salt and pepper to taste

Prepare one cup citrus stuffing for each pound of bird.

Soak the top and bottom of roaster in water for 5-10 minutes.

Sprinkle the goose inside and out with lemon juice, salt, and pepper.

Fill the cavities of the bird with stuffing and truss the goose, tying the legs loosely to the tail. Prick the skin of the goose all over with a fork to allow the fat out.

Place the goose in a clay roaster (preferably), breast side up. Place the pan in a cold oven oven set at 425 degrees. Roast for 15-20 minutes per pound, ready to cook weight. After the first 45 minutes of cooking, lift the lid of the pot and remove rendered fat with a turkey baster. Try to remove the fat, not the juices. Repeat at 20-30 minute intervals throughout cooking.

If desired, remove the top for the clay pot about 15 minutes before the expected end of cooking time to speed last minute browning. (Remove earlier for extra crispy skin). The goose is done when the leg joint moves easily when jiggled.

Remove the clay pot from the oven and place on a mat or towel, not on a cold counter. Make gravy from the drippings in the pot.

For added flavor in the gravy, stir in a little tart currant jelly.

MASHED POTATO CASSEROLE

5 pounds potatoes
2 3-ounce packages cream cheese
1 cup sour cream
1½ teaspoons salt
Pepper and onion to taste

Cook, drain, and mash potatoes. Add other ingredients and put into greased 3-quart casserole. Top with a little butter and bake at 350 degrees for about 45 minutes. May be refrigerated for 2 weeks or frozen. Serves 10-12.

DATE PUDDING

1 pound graham cracker crumbs
1 pound dates
1 pound marshmallows
1 cup English walnuts
1 cup cream, unbeaten
Whipped cream

Combine cracker crumbs, dates, marshmallows, walnuts, and 1 cup cream. Press into cake pan. Cut into pieces and layer with whipped cream to serve.

HELP TREES AND SHRUBS SURVIVE WINTER

Trees and shrubs planted this past spring and fall require special care if they are to survive the rigors of this coming winter. Water, mulch and provide physical protection to successfully overwinter tender woody plants.

To reduce the amount of water that brodleafer evergreens like rhododendrons lose during the winter, spray the foliage with a wax-forming anti-desiccant. Apply anti-desiccants on days that are over 45 F. Since these materials crack or peel off after awhile, plan to apply a second coat during a thaw in January or early February.

University researchers are looking at new anti-desiccants, which work by changing the behavior of the stomates, rather than physically blocking them. The stomates are the pores through which water vapor is lot to the atmosphere.

Protect tender small plants using plywood boxes or burlap shields. A plywood A-frame can shelter a young holly both from the drying forces of winds and from the heavy weights of snow or ice loads. A burlap shield placed around newly planted Mahonias can break the wind's velocity, and thus reduce the number of leaves that desiccate and turn brown by spring.

Trees or shrubs that are planted in permanent landscape containers have special winter needs. Unlike trees whose roots benefit from the insulating effect of the ground, containerized woody plants are open targets for cold-induced root injury. The best solution is to move the containers into protected locations such as garage bays or tool sheds until early spring. If this is impossible, rigid insulation or partial hay bales can be secured to the sides of the container. Choose species for container plantings that have especially cold-hardy root systems.

Spring is the time to evaluate winter-related damage. Some of the most common forms of damage are death of flower buds, twigs, or roots; desiccation browning of evergreen leaves or needles, and sun scald and bark splitting of thin-barked trees. For help diagnosing plants injured by winter weather. Contact the Extension Office in your county. Many counties have volunteer "Master Gardeners" to assist diagnosing plant problems.

5½ cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup milk

Turn out on lightly floured board and roll to ⅛ -inch thickness. Cut with round cookie cutter and place one-inch apart on greased cookie sheet.

Spread with the following filling.

2 cups ground raisins
1 cup sugar
1 cup water
2 tablespoons flour

HOLIDAY BEEF TIP ROAST

3½ -8 pound beef tip roast (cap off)

Place beef tip roast on rack in open roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb is centered in thickest part. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in 325-degree oven to desired degree of doness; 140 degrees for rare; 160 degrees for medium. For a 3½ -5 pound roast, allow 35 to 40 minutes per pound, depending on desired doneness. For a 6 to 8 pound roast, allow 30 to 35 minutes per pound.

For easier carving, allow roast to stand in a warm place 15 to 20 minutes after removal from oven. Since roast usually continues to cook after removal from oven, it is best to remove it about 5 degrees below the temperature desired.

CANDIED SWEET POTATOES

3 15-ounce cans sweet potatoes, drained
1½ cups granulated sugar
¼ pound butter

Place sweet potatoes in a casserole dish. Sprinkle sugar over sweet potatoes.

In a small saucepan, lightly brown the butter then pour it over the sugared sweet potatoes.

Place casserole dish in oven and bake for 45 to 50 minutes at 375 degrees. Serve hot.

Try your hands at popcorn sculpting. The Christmas tree, wreath, and snowman can be displayed or eaten for holiday fun.

Popcorn Sculpting

Popcorn is a universal snack. Everyone loves it, and why not! It's good for you, inexpensive, and easy to make.

In between snacking on popped corn, try your hand at popcorn sculpting. The Christmas tree, wreath, and snowman are proven pleasers. They're fun to make, and the finished sulptures can be eaten or displayed for holiday entertainment.

Or, string popcorn for the trees outside your house. It gives your yard a decorative flair and the birds and squirrels will like it too.

Here are some directions.

BASIC SCULPTING RECIPE
(For Wreaths and Snowmen)

2 quarts popped corn
No-stick cooking spray
½ cup sugar
½ cup light corn syrup
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon green food color (for wreath only)

Spray a large baking sheet with cooking spray; set aside. In saucepan, over medium heat, combine sugar, corn syrup, salt, and food color. Cook, stirring constantly, until sugar melts and mixture comes to a full boil. Immediately pour over popcorn. Working carefully and quickly, toss popcorn with wooded spoon until well coated. Use greased hands when shaping into sculptures.

To Decorate Wreaths
Basic Sculpting Recipe
Red Licorice
Fruit by the Foot (optional)
Red hots

Divide basic sculpting mixture in half. Shape each half into a wreath. Wrap licorice around wreath about every 2 to 3 inches. Decorate wreath with Red Hots. Form licorice or Fruit by the Foot into a ribbon and press into wreath.

To Decorate Snowmen
Basic Sculpting Recipe
2 tablespoons powdered sugar
Water
Thin wafter cookies OR thin mint cookies
Ho Ho
Gumdrops, cut in fourths
Candy Corn
Fruit by the Foot
M&M's

Shape basic sculpting mixture into balls to create snowmen (finished size approximately 7 inches high). Mix powdered sugar with enough water to form a thick paste. Use paste to attach candies and cookie to snowmen. Place chocolate cookie on top of snowman's head as brim of hat. Cut one end of Ho Ho to the desired height of top hat; attach to center of chocolate cookie. Cut gumdrops into fourths; attach as eyes. Paste candy corn on as a nose. Cut Fruit by the Foot in half lengthwise to desired length for scarf. Use kitchen shears to fringe the ends of the scarf. Attach M&M's to body of snowman as buttons. Cut Fruit by the Foot into a small band to be used around the top hat. Secure with paste mixture.

O POPCORN TREE

8 quarts popped corn
No-stick cooking spray
2 cups sugar
2 cups light corn syrup
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon green food color
1 empty paper towel roll
Assorted gumballs or small jar breakers
1 package tiny, candy-coated, multi-colored gum
12-piece box fruit flavored, candy-coated, multi-colored gum
4.25-ounce tube white decorating icing
Silver dragees (round silver candies)
Star (purchased at a craft store)

Measure 8 quarts popped corn and divide into two large bowls; set aside. Spray a large baking

Remember The First Christmas

Children try to get an upciose view of what the first Christmas might have been like when Jesus was born in a stable. If you have the opportunity, attend a reenactment of the Christmas story shown in your area.

This friendly camel accompanied by a "wise man" delighted the audience at the reenactment of the Christmas story held in the barn of the Fred Heller farm in Lititz.

Grow Holiday Gifts

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Young and thrifty alike don't have to look any further than the kitchen for thoughtful, living holiday gifts.

Leftovers - including food and trash - are easy to make into attractive houseplants, said Marianne Riofrio, an Ohio State University horticulturist. Children can experience the thrill of watching something grow, then sharing it as a gift, while adults who are in a money crunch can also appreciate the low costs.

Plants grown from foods usually don't bear fruit indoors. However, they do have unusual foliage. The following tips should help you get started on some of the easier plants.

• Avocados. Remove the seed, rinse off skin in warm water, and insert three toothpicks at equal distance around the midsection. Suspend the seed with the pointed end up over a glass or jar of water. Make sure water covers the seed's bottom third. If a slimy coating appears on the seed or in the water, just rinse it off and replace the water. Place the container in bright, indirect sunlight until the seed splits and roots, and one or more shoots appear. When a shoot reaches 3 inches, transplant the seed to a 6-inch pot filled with potting soil, leaving half or more of the seed exposed. Keep the plant in bright light, feed it with a balanced, water-soluble houseplant fertilizer, and pinch it to keep it bushy and attractive.

• Sweet potatoes. Choose a plump sweet potato without deep scars. Insert three toothpicks around the sweet potato and place it with the pointed end down in a jar or glass of water so the bottom half stays wet. Place in a sunny location. When shoots reach 8 inches, transplant the sweet potato into a pot at least 50 percent deeper than the tuber's length. Bury the entire sweet potato in well-drained potting soil. Provide the plant with bright light and water it frequently for a beautiful vine of heart-shaped foliage.

• Terrariums. These encased gardens are ideal planters for small areas such as offices. They can be a little more costly than avocados or sweet potatoes, only because you have to supply the plants. Use your imagination to find a container. Consider mason jars, mayonnaise jars, recycled clear plastic liter bottles or salad trays. If a container lacks a cover, use a piece of glass or plastic wrap.

Old-fashioned sleigh rides delight visitors at the Smith Ranch and at nearby ski resorts.

Sleigh Bells Ring At Smith Ranch

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

CLEARVILLE (Bedford Co.) — Even when he was a kid, Jim Smith wanted a horse.

It was a dream he has realized many times over with his pastures now feeding two Percherons, 12 Belgiums, two quarters horses, and pony.

Jim and his wife, Nancy, spent the early years of their married life in Morrison's Cove where they had a large dairy farm and raised four children.

When the number of mouths to feed decreased to one and joints began to creak with the workload known to all farmers, Jim decided it was time to look at things a little differently.

"It was time for a change," Jim recalls. "We began cutting back in 1989 and continued to do so until we found a buyer for our farm."

"We were at that point in our lives all farmers reach. We either had to get bigger, go backwards, or get out of it. I decided on the latter. We didn't have any sons to take over and the girls weren't interested. I didn't want to wait until it was too late!"

"We began looking for a property where we could have a few acres and dedicate more time to raising horses."

They found it in 1994, in a remote area of Bedford County ... 75 acres with a modern home overlooking a scenic valley. The huge living room faces west allowing a spectacular view of the sunsets.

Needing a way to recoup their money from the horses, the Smiths started their own carriage business for weddings, private parties, and festivals. In the winter, they have a sleigh which is incorporated into the activites at Seven Springs, a Somerset County ski resort.

Equipment includes a white carriage, a hitch wagon, and a single seated buggy with a convertible top.

Horses, carriage and/or sleigh are transported on a gooseneck trailer truck.

"It's been enjoyable," Jim says. "Something we can all do." Daughter Christine is the present Bedford County Draft Horse Queen.

Jim raises most of his own feed for the horses. "I'm a farmer at heart," he admits.

A high tensil fence surrounding the property is quite adequate for the horses and the beef cattle he also raises.

Getting into the horses, carriage, and sleigh business required an initial cash outlay for advertising.

"Now, we mostly operate by word of mouth," Jim says.

"My work at Hidden Springs allows me a lot of opportunities to let people know about my wedding or private party rides."

The sleigh rides are, to Jim, the most enjoyable part of the horse venture. "I love the kids that see those big horses and get so excited," he smiles. "A lot of them will ride right up and stick their heads underneath to see if they are boys or girls."

Youth or school groups can book sleigh rides on the Smith Ranch which saves the price of hauling and equipment.

Cost for a wedding is $225 for the day plus 80 cents a mile for road expense.

The Smiths can be reached by calling (814) 784-5974.

Berlin Brothersvalley FFA Receives National Chapter Award

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

BERLIN (Somerset Co.) — It's orientation to set and achieve goals through high standards of performance and hard work paid off on November 14 for Berlin-Brothersvalley FFA Chapter, a promoter of cooperation between students, school and community.

At the 69th Annual FFA Convention held in Kansas City, Missouri, it received the highest possible FFA honor, the Star National Chapter award.

The local organization pulls together a program that effectively develops individual students, the chapter itself and the surrounding community, with guidance from Doyle Paul, an exemplar and advisor for the last 30 years.

To wit, early this month in Fort Worth, Texas, Paul himself received the Outstanding Ag Leader for the Pennsylvania Association of the National Young Farmers Education Association, award.

As senior Justin Miller, the chapter's third vice president and demonstration team member, noted: "Mr. Paul give his service not only to the school, but to the community." Jonathan Dickey, the second vice president quickly pointed to and read a Paul's favorite motto. "Autograph your work with excellence."

"He is someone who wants you to succeed," added Desirae Hillegass, chapter secretary. "He gives you extra help so you can succeed."

"All I can do is inspire and give them the opportunity to participate in a variety of experiences," said Paul, who missed hearing his students' comments.

Berliln-Brothersvalley FFA members attended the Somerset County Leadership Conference where they learned that a good leader will recognize those moments when it is his turn to temporarily drop back and follow somebody else.

The chapter has long sponsored the annual blood drive conducted in their school district for the American Red Cross because it promotes student development.

Additionally, the supervised one-acre corn-growing contest provided the kids with foundational knowledge about the management of crops and management of business affairs.

Operation Greenstripe found the FFA'ers recruiting local farmers who would establish vegetative buffers between their fields and surface water supplies, in a program of research into the prevention of soil erosion and entry of chemicals into surface water, using stripes of vegetation.

After completing the very successful Operation Greenstripe Program, by adhering to its guidelines and monitoring the effect of severe thunderstorms on the green stripes, the sponsoring Monsanto Company was given a summary of the Brothersvalley project.

Berlin-Brothersvalley FFA Chapter promotes itself in the school and educates the student body about agriculture by holding a high school assembly to recruit new members.

Having 77 members working for the common good is how $4,500 was raised from the annual sale of citrus fruits.

Twenty-five cents for each carton was sent to the Pennsylvania FFA Foundation and unsold fruit was given where special needs existed in the community.

Learning and practicing the rules of parliamentary procedure for its meetings is a habit that never falls by the wayside. The Berlin-Brothersvalley FFA parliamentry procedure team competes locally, areawide, regionally and at the state level.

"There are a lot of people who don't know what parliamentary procedure is," says Dickey, acknowledging that now he's very conscious of it.

"You help them along," he added.

"Public speaking has helped me," says Miller, who has found his sea lege in the area of extemporaneous public speaking. These days, he doesn't want for self-confidence.

"I do a lot of speaking and reading in my church (the Beachdale Church of the Brethren)," he reported.

Without the hardworking local FFA chapter, the Berlin Community Fair would be left high and dry, but as it is, the fair was held recently, for the 59th time.

Activities such as its beehive educational exhibit at the Somerset County Day at the Farm, the annual farm safety programs and maple sugaring demonstrations, do more than heighten the public's general awareness of the Future Farmers of America, and the Brothersvalley chapter in particular, although it won a second-place state gold medal for its 1995-96 activities.

It heightens cognizance about specific things that more often than not, the public and farmers think about too little of the time.

A primary concern of the Berlin-Brothersvalley FFA is that of farm and hunter safety. Rather than keep silent, the chapter looks for resources — local fire and ambulance departments — to enhance the safety presentations it makes to groups in the community.

The state game commission, state fish commission, the humane society and the Red Cross are also vital links.

The Chapter's strong emphasis on farm safety was recently recognized by state Sec. of Agriculture, Charles C. Brosius, when he presented the first place certificate to the Berlin-Brothesvalley FFA Chapter at Ag Progress Days last summer.

"Farm safety is a priority of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture," the secretary was quoted. "We are pleased to recognize FFA's commitment to improving the future of the industry."

So to practice what they preach, the students repair farm tractors, and farm machinery and, when needed, install the safety guards, shields, and ropes as well as fire extinguishers and SMVs.

Before receiving their private pesticide certification, all the students are instructed in agricultural chemical usage and hunter safety education is given to first year students.

"We are a chapter that sets goals," reported Hillegass, a senior who joined the program two years ago and now is leaning strongly toward a major in dairy and animal science and a minor in ag communications, when she enters college.

"We meet those goals," she states. "We are a very optimistic chapter and accomplish what we set out to do."

Competing in skills contests such as the demonstration team, tractor driving, and small engine are examples of Brothersvalley's willingness to strive toward betterment.

The chapter is always represented at leadership conference, the national convention, FFA Week at Penn State, visits to the state legislature, the farm show, county fair and others.

Seeing the force of FFA in their community, elicits stron support from both the private and business sectors, according to Paul.

"The chapter has a waiting list for businesses who are waiting to support our FFA calendar project," he says.

The longtime advisor is now teaching the second generation of his early students in the Brothersvalley FFA. Their success stories are sources of encouragement to him.

He says, however, that it is the transformation of attitudes about their future that gives him the greatest satisfaction in his students' progress from year to year.

"I think of students who come in as freshmen with no goals. They come into my program and start to do well in secondary work and then get involved in projects," said Paul, who also expects them to strive for academic excellence.

His assignments include written and oral reports and essays relating to their projects and activities.

He is encouraging them to enter the recently announced mid-winter FFA Convention Essay Contest.

With the Food for America project, Berlin's elementary kids are learning, thanks to Paul's programs, how important agriculture is to society.

With the 1996-97 FFA national theme "FFA Leaders With A Vision," in mind, ideas for involving elementary students are already running through Paul's mind.

"I am hoping to bring on a new program for the elementary about safety for kids," he said.

Desirae Hillegass and Jonathan Dickey, Berlin-Brothersvalley FFA Chapter work on the chapter scrapbook.

Jonathan Dickey, foreground, shows his FFA senior project — his grandfather's Cockshutt Blackhawk 40 tractor. Justin Miller is assisting him with the work.

Berlin-Brothersvalley FFA members Jonathan Dickey, left, and Justin Miller, holding the antlers of the deer Dickey bagged on opening day of deer season, are very involved in teaching hunter safety through the FFA.

include African violets, begonias, coleus, English ivy, jade plant and pothos. Other terrarium plants are dwarf maidenhair fern, parlor palm, creeping fig, baby's tears, prayer plant and dwarf gloxinia.

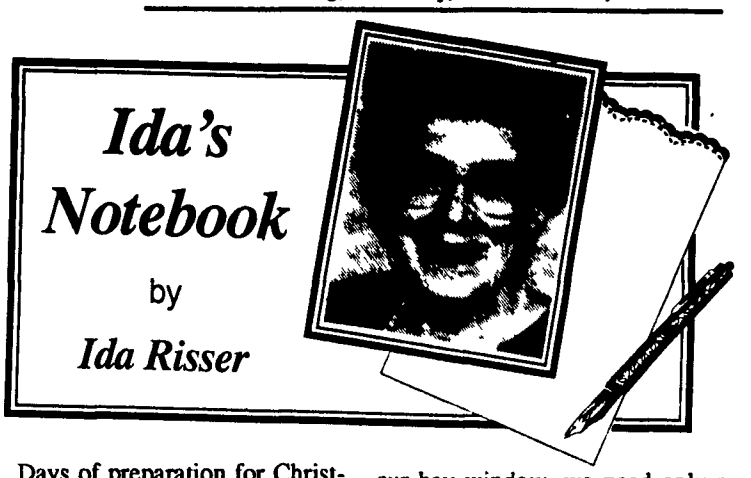
Clean and dry the container. Place a thin layer of small stones or pebbles across the bottom to help drain water. Cover the stones with potting soil that drains well. Slightly wet the soil. Both layers should occupy less than a fifth of the container. Place non-plant accent items such as seashells in the terrarium first. Make holes in the soil with an unwound wire hanger to plant the largest cuttings. Finish with the shorter plants. Never place a plant so it touches the edges of the container; it will collect moisture and decay.

Lightly mist the plants and cover the terrarium. If water beads on the sides, moisture is about right. If the interior fogs, remove the cover for a day to allow the plant to dry. Water the terrarium when the soil feels dry. Mist just enough to barely moisten the soil. Place in a bright light, but not direct sunlight, in an area that remains about 70 degrees Fahrenheit.

• Oranges, lemons, tangerines and grapefruits. These will take about a year to grow into an attractive plant.

Remove the fattest seeds and wash them. Soak the seeds overnight in water. Plant them about a half-inch deep in a small pot with loose, quick-draining potting soil. Water thoroughly and fasten a plastic bag over the pot only until the seeds sprout. If moisture builds up on all sides of the bag, loosen or remove it to dry it out. Transfer sprouts to larger pots once roots grow through the drainage holes.

Give plants increasingly brighter light. Feed them monthly with a balanced houseplant fertilizer. Citrus plants grow into small, bush trees with glossy, deep-green foliage that gives off a pleasant odor when bruised. After four or five years, some plants flower and produce fruit. Unfortunately, most indoor-raised citrus is hard and bitter tasting.



Days of preparation for Christmas! Our 94 cards with notes are ready the first week of December. Next comes cookie baking. Each year I make most of my 20 favorite recipes. And, I make a lot so that I can share with my Amish neighbors. Finding nice boxes to put them in is the next job. Delivering them is enjoyable if there is no snow on the ground.

I've put swags of evergreens with red ribbons on the two front doors and cut more holly with red berries to decorate inside the house. We cut a small tree from a lot in northern Lancaster County. It was an easy choice as my husband and I both walked up a hill directly to this one special tree. As we set it on a blanket chest inside our bay window, we need only a small one to reach the ceiling. Last year the whole tree tumbled to the floor after it was decorated. Surely hope that does not happen this year.

Most of our children will come home for Christmas. Some families will stay for four days and some six days. With a lot of grandchildren running around, there won't be any dull moments. Then after Christmas we will have an open house for lots and lots of relatives. Our gift to each family is a package of cheese. We used to buy a 40 pound block and then wrap individual packages.

Of course, while I'm doing all of this preparation for Christmas, my husband is hunting deer with the emphasis on "hunting." Our son went along to Snyder County one day and told me that he really enjoyed simply being up in the mountains. I do hope we have good weather for all of these activities.

Christmas Trees Do Not Just Grow

COLUMBUS, Ohio — It takes a lot more than an angel on top to make a good Christmas tree. It also takes time.

A typical Christmas tree needs to grow six to eight years after planting before it is ready to be decorated. Most of the 6-foot to 8-foot pine trees being cut for this year's holiday season were planted in the late 1980s, said Randy Heiligmann, Ohio State University Extension forestry specialist.

Firs and Douglas firs need an even longer growing period, from seven to 10 years. Fir trees planted this year will not be ready for market until at least Christmas of 2003, and if they are grown on poorer sites, they may not be ready for Santa until 2007, he said.

Tree growers put in many hours of management to produce quality Christmas trees.

"Fifty years ago, many trees being sold were wild. People just went out and cut down whatever was about the right size," Heiligmann said. "But the nature of the industry has changed tremendously, and today the operative word is quality, because of consumer demand, competition and the alternative of an artificial tree that is very uniform."

For the first two or three years and often throughout a tree's growing period, growers must control weeds. Weed control reduces competition for soil moisture and nutrients, looks nicer to "cut-you-own" customers, and eliminates many insect and disease problems. If weeds are left around the base, the area becomes dark and damp, and rusts and other diseases could turn needles brown or do more severe damage. Heiligmann said. To control weeds, growers usually mow their fields two to five times a year, depending on the weather. Mowing also makes it easier to manage trees and allows better access for customers.

Growers walk their plantations about once a week to scout for insect and disease problems. If a problem is detected, they must take immediate action. Insects and diseases can kill a tree, but more commonly they damage a tree's foliage and branches, making it unsuitable as a Christmas tree.

During spring and summer, growers shear or prune trees to give them the shape of a Christmas tree. Shearing also makes trees denser and corrects defects and open spaces that most consumers do not like, Heiligmann said.

Soil testing lets growers know if fertilizer is needed. The average Ohio grower has 15 to 20 acres of trees and many fertilize their trees at least once every two years, he said. Fertilization improves growth, density and color.

Even after all this management, many trees will either die or be too defective for market. Only around 50 percent to 60 percent of planted scotch pine, the most abundant Christmas tree variety grown in Ohio, become good trees. Pines have a lot of insect and disease problems, are difficult to shear, and many develop holes once they are 4 feet to 5 feet tall.

"Pines have always had a low plant-to-harvest ratio, but they're what the market demanded," Heiligmann said. "It's outstanding if 70 percent of pine trees make it to market."

Firs, Douglas fir and spruces usually have a little better survival rate than pines, but take longer to raise. If planted on an ideal location, more than 80 percent of these trees should make it to market, he said.

Once the trees are harvested, fields must be cleaned up by removing stumps and adding fertilizer if needed. Fields can either rest for a year or be immediately replanted, Heiligmann said.

Greens Bring Nature Home For The Holidays

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — Decorating the home with greens fresh from the garden or landscape is one of the most enjoyable activities of the holiday season. Some greens are more suitable than others for home use. So, whether you harvest your own or buy ones that are already cut, it's important to know the species.

Several fir species have luxuriant, green, blunt, glossy needles from 3/5- to 1-inch long. Fir branches are used for roping and wreaths, the needles for pillows. They are popular Christmas trees because they don't shed their needles readily. Fir branches and wreaths can be used both inside and outside the home.

Spruces are another evergreen found in Pennsylvania landscapes. They make beautiful Christmas trees, but will shed their needles after they dry out. You can use boughs for wreaths, swags and other outdoor decorations. Spruce cones also are attractive and can be used in making wreaths and other decorations.

Be cautious. It's easy to confuse spruce and fir when choosing or cutting greens. To be sure you're selecting fir boughs, which are more desirable for indoor decorating, grab the needles. If it hurts, it's a spruce (square needles); if it doesn't, it's a fir (flat needles).

Like spruce, hemlocks dry out quickly indoors and drop their needles. Thus, they should be used indoors only when decorations are to be up for a very short period or where they can be arranged in water. Both hemlock and spruce are best used for outdoor decorations where colder temperatures will retard drying.

Pine is very abundant throughout Pennsylvania. When sheared, pines make attractive Christmas trees. White pines have a wonderful, soft and feathery texture. Unfortunately, they're very resinous, but they do last a long time indoors and don't drop their needles. Pine also can be used for making wreaths and roping and the cones are used in many decorations.

Other suitable narrow-leaved evergreens to choose for indoors include cedar, juniper and yew. Although cedar may give too heavy a look, it can be incorporated with other greens to create a balanced appearance. Yew is an excellent evergreen to use in arrangements because its rich, dark green color provides an added contrast to the lighter green and gray-greens of other plant species.

Broad-leaved evergreens also popular for holiday decorating, though they tend to dry out more quickly than needle-type greens. The most commonly used include laurel, holly, English ivy and

In-A-Pinch Ingredient Substitutes

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — You're in the middle of a recipe and suddenly discover you're out of baking powder. You could make a special trip to the grocery store, but that would take valuable time and energy you don't have to spare.

The solution - make your own baking powder by combining ¼ teaspoon baking soda with ⅝ teaspoon cream of tartar. No cream of tartar? Don't panic. You can substitute ½ tablespoon of vinegar or lemon juice for the cream of tartar in your make-shift baking powder formula.

No baking soda? Now you have a problem. There is no good substitute for the baking soda portion of baking powder. Unless you want to switch recipes entirely, you'll need to go to the grocery store or call on a friendly neighbor.

Many ingredients can be substituted for one another. Some cannot. Because every ingredient brings special properties and functions to a recipe, it is important to understand these when making substitutions.

Factors to consider when looking for an ingredient substitute include how the substitute might differ from the original ingredient in taste, function, moisture content, acidity, texture and weight.

Some substitutes simply are another form of the needed ingredient. For example, ⅛ teaspoon of garlic powder can be substituted for one small clove of garlic. When equivalent ingredients are substituted, very little change will be noticed in the final product.

Other substitutes may have some properties that are similar and others for which you need to adjust. For example, plain milk can be substituted for buttermilk in a recipe, provided you account for the acidity of the buttermilk. If you're out of buttermilk, put 1 tablespoon of vinegar or lemon juice in a measuring cup, add sweet milk and let the mixture stand for five minutes before using.

If you're counting calories, you may wish to substitute plain yogurt for sour cream in salad dressings and vegetable dips. Plain yogurt is similar in weight and function to sour cream, but is not as rich and creamy nor as high in calories. One cup of plain yogurt contains 130 calories compared to 415 in a cup of sour cream.

Sometimes, people are interested in substituting honey for sugar in recipes. Although honey and sugar both are sweetening agents, honey is more sweet and acidic than sugar. Therefore, only about 13/16 cup of honey (1 cup less 3 tablepoons) is needed for each cup of sugar replaced. It's also wise to reduce the liquid called for in the recipe by 3 tablespoons for every cup of honey substituted for sugar, and to add a pinch of baking soda to the recipe to help neutralize the acidity.

How Geography Affects Milk Prices

How Is The Price Of Milk Determined?

Such a simple question. But there's no simple answer.

In fact, entire college courses are designed around that topic. The answer takes into account not only what the dairy farmer is paid, but also costs of processing, packaging and distribution; how much a retailer is willing reduce its usual mark-up; and (believe it or not) how far a region is from Eau Claire, Wis.

First, it's important to know that raw milk is sold by the "hundredweight," which is 100 pounds and equals about 11⅝ gallons. Also, the highest class of raw milk - used for fluid milk consumption - gets a premium price while milk used for cheese, powdered milk, yogurt, etc., gets just a basic price. Those prices are set each month depending on supply and demand.

For example, in December, milk sold in central Ohio's fluid milk market (one of 33 such markets in the nation) gets a basic price of $14.13 per hundredweight plus an additional $2.04 for fluid milk. In contract, milk sold in the market closest to Eau Claire gets only an additional $1.20 for fluid milk, while milk sold in the Miami, Fla., area gets an additional $4.18.

Southern states get higher prices because cows don't usually produce as much milk in hot, humid conditions, and feed and forage is not as plentiful as it is in the Midwest. Higher prices encourage both southern farmers to stay in production and northern farmers to ship some of their milk down south.

California, the highest milk-producing state, doesn't fit this profile. Its huge dairy farms produce so much milk so efficiently that farmers can take a much lower price and still be profitable.

These days, an Ohio farmer can count on getting about $1.50 from a $2.39 gallon of milk. Another 30 cents goes for processing, and 32 cents goes for distribution and other wholesaling costs. The remaining 27 cents is what the retailer adds on to cover costs and make a profit. That's only about 10 percent of what a retailer pays for milk - much less than the usual 22 percent markup typical in food retail. Ohio retailers often reduce the markup on milk just to draw customers to their store.

Finally, store prices of whole vs. lowfat vs. skim milk typically have very little to do with production or processing costs. For example, skim milk is the cheapest kind of milk to process (because nearly all of the high-value butterfat is skimmed off and sold at a good price), but it is rarely the cheapest milk a consumer can buy. Both processors and retailers can claim higher profits on skim milk to make up for lower profits on higher-fat milks.

evergreen euonymus. They are attractive alone or in combination with the needle types.

When pruning boughs or foliage from outdoor plants, don't prune an excessive amount from any one plant. Greens should be pruned off carefully so as not to destroy the symmetry of the plant. Use sharp pruning shears.

Prune bnaches as close as possible to the trunk or a main branch, but don't cut the branch collar. That's the point of attachment to the parent branch or trunk. Slant the cut slightly outward and downward. Make a smooth cut. Don't leave a stub. Also, don't break off branches as this will leave ragged ends which don't heal properly.

To make cut greens last throughout the holiday season without water, harvest sprigs and cuttings the night before you plan to decorate with them. Crush the stem ends with a hammer, or make several long vertical cuts. Place in a bucket of cool water, and leave overnight in a cool basement or garage to absorb as much water as possible.

After conditioning, dip holly stem ends in candle wax to seal in the resin. Ivy will last longer if you dip the entire cutting (leaves and stems) in clear liquid floor wax and spread on newspaper to dry. With such conditioning, boxwood and ivy should last up to two weeks out of water, holly up to 10 days.

Don't put your greens near a source of heat, such as a radiator, wood stove or television set. A cooler spot will help your decorations to stay fresh throughout the entire holiday season.

Penn Yan FFA Members Attend 69th National FFA Convention

MARCY QUACKENBUSH
Penn Yan FFA Reporter

Eleven FFA members from the Penn Yan Chapter of FFA traveled to the 69th National FFA Convention, Nov. 9-18.

Penn Yan members who attended were Scott Fisher, Matt Fritz, Jon Hunt, Natalie Jensen, Emily Lilyea, Mike Lilyea, Jim McElwee, Andrew Miller, Marcy Quackenbush, Aaron Vaughan, Steven Vaughan and their adviser John Kriese.

The trip started on Saturday, Nov. 9, when the 12 FFA members met 102 other FFA members from across the state. On Saturday, the group toured Blue Seal Feeds in Arcade, N.Y. Here they saw how Blue Seal packages all their animal feed and seed.

On Sunday, the troop toured the Toledo Zoo in Ohio. The FFA members had the chance to see all kinds of animals that people normally can't see in everyday life. Some animals were giraffes, koala bears, seals, kangaroos, and lions. At night, the group went to the Sears Tower in Chicago.

On Monday, Nov. 11, the FFA'ers toured the Illini Swine Breeders in Kingston, Iowa. The Kinze Planters factory was the next stop. Here the group saw every detail and the steps taken into putting together a Kinze Planter.

On Tuesday, FFA'ers toured the Pioneer International Seed Company in Ankenny, Iowa. They also toured the John Deere Works in Des Moines, Iowa. Here they saw every detail and the steps taken to putting a John Deere cotton picker together.

On Wednesday through Saturday, the FFA members attended the 69th National FFA Convention. This year was a special convention to the members of the Penn Yan FFA Chapter because Mike Lilyea, Andrew Miller, and Steven Vaughan represented New York State in the agricultural mechanics career development event.

The National Agricultural Mechanics Career Development Event is designed to test knowledge and skills in agricultural mechanics. The event includes individual skills, individual and team problem-solving activities, and a written exam. Areas of emphasis include machinery and equipment, industry and marketing, energy, structural, and environmental/natural resources. Each team in the event has completed with other chapters in their state for the privilege of participating in the national event. Out of the 42 teams competing in the contest, Penn Yan placed 14th, receiving a silver award. They were one place away from a gold. Out of the 130 individuals, Steve (gold) placed 36th, Mike (gold) placed 40th, and Andy (silver) placed 45th.

This year, the convention set a record high in attendance with more than 41,000 members, parents, and guests attending. At the convention, members had a lot to choose from. They could either go to the Career Show, which had more than 300 exhibits, go on a tour such as the Hallmark Manufacturing Plant, the NCAA Hall of Champions, the Federal Reserve band, and many more.

Members could also attend the Convention Sessions and hear people speak such as Terry Bradshaw (FOX Broadcaster and Super Bowl Champion), Dr. Debbye Turner (former Miss America), Ty England (National FFA alumni spokesperson and RCA recording artist), and the National FFA officers. They could also see FFA members from many states receive awards, perform in the National FFA Band, chorus, and talent. This year's convention was also special for New York State FFA members because Bill Catania, National FFA Eastern Region vice president, is from Westfield, N.Y.

You ask You answer

This column is for readers who have questons but don't know who to ask for answers.

It's hard to believe another year has gone by already. The last 12 months have seen some new records set in the grain markets. (I hope everyone was able to take advantage of it.) I know I sure didn't. Unfortunately it has not been great for everyone as some are still harvesting beans and corn. Let's keep these farmers in our prayers, and if you get a chance, offer them moral support or help. I am sure they would greatly appreciate it.

I would like to thank all of the buyers, consignors, church people with the food service, auctioneers, ringman and employees who helped make this last year successful, and we look forward to working with each of you in this coming year. Merry Christmas & Happy New Year to all of you!!

Jim Jr.

Christmas Thoughts

Let us keep Christmas, its meaning never ends ...the time of year to wish happiness and good will to friends and loved ones, near and far...the time to share the joys of the past and the hopes of the future, and to remember all we have to be thankful for. Legend of the Cattle

It is in the cows' manger that the Infant Jesus was laid, and a legend tells that on Christmas Eve cattle kneel in adoration, and are given the power of speech. It is also thought that the cow in the stable breathed on the Baby to keep Him warm.

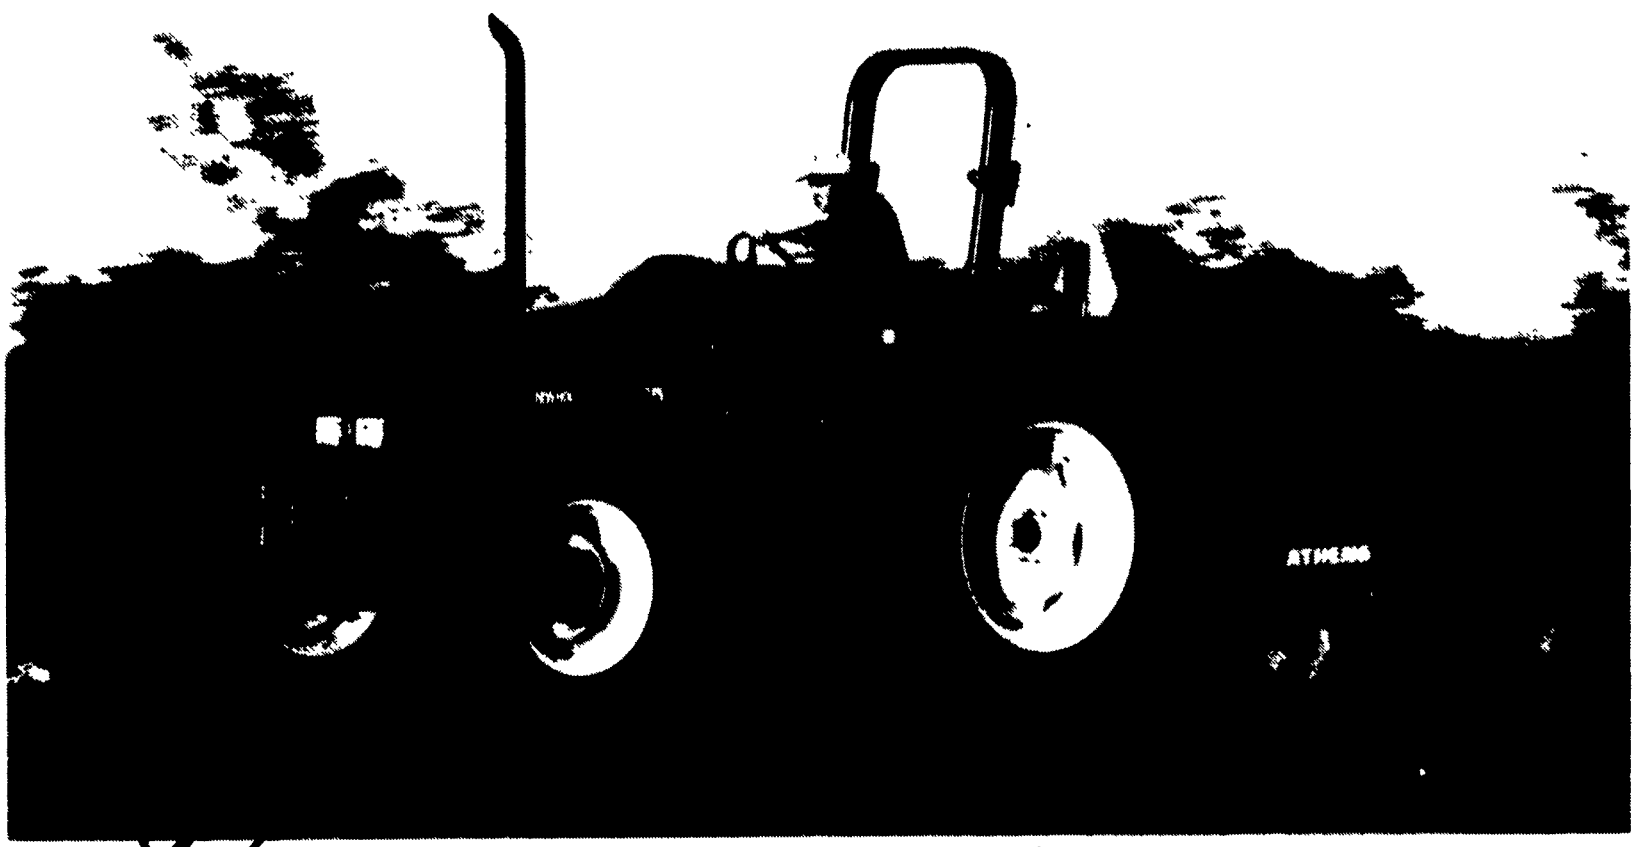
QUALITY HOLSTEIN DAIRY HERDS FOR SALE
REGISTERED & GRADE — ALL SIZES



Great looks. Aggressive power.

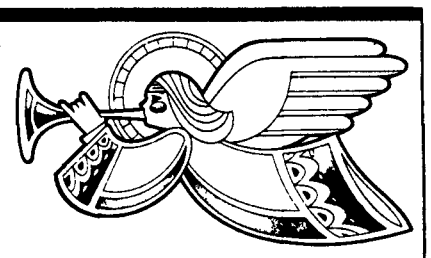
A New Holland 35 Series tractor can really fool you. It looks so compact and stylish, you're totally unprepared for how hard it works.

Powerful engines

Rugged, compact New Holland engines work big, producing 56 to 86 PTO horsepower, and between 22% and 30% torque rise. There is 1000 useful rpm between maximum torque and maximum power. Not only that, they're quiet. And miserly with fuel.

HEAVENLY JOY

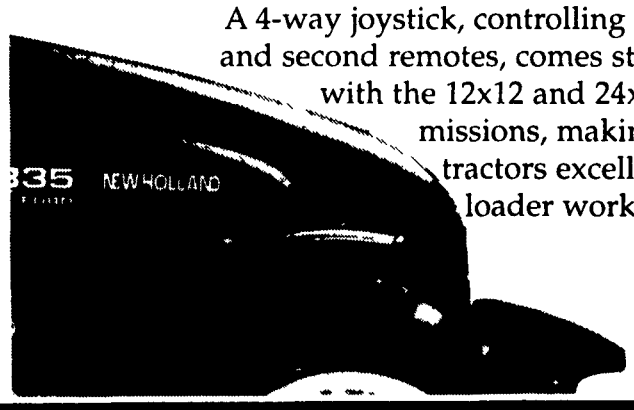
May the true spirit of Christmas always grace your life.



Three transmissions

Choose from three transmissions:
- reliable 12x4 synchro
- 12x12 Synchro Command™ with shuttle
- 24x12 Dual Command™ with shuttle

A 4-way joystick, controlling the first and second remotes, comes standard with the 12x12 and 24x12 transmissions, making these tractors excellent for loader work.



Visibility and Comfort

Comfortable flat decks and short sloping hoods give you exceptional vision straight ahead, and good sight lines to the front wheels. You sit comfortably, with plenty of room for your knees and feet. And you can enter or exit either side.

There's plenty more, too: foldable ROPS; A/C cabs (even on the 56-hp model); electro-hydraulic diff-lock; heavy duty 3-point.

Tell your dealer you want to try a "35 Series", the latest member of the exciting New Holland family of tractors.

Owens Receives Perrine Scholarship

GENEVA, N.Y. — Chris Owens' efforts in Cornell University's pomology program were recognized by Hugh Price, chairman of the Department of Horticultural Sciences at the Agricultural Experiment Station in Geneva, N.Y., when he presented Chris with the 1996 Perrine Scholarship Award recently.

"Overall, I am really thrilled to receive the award, and very grateful to the Perrine family for endowing it," said Owens. "I think it is really wonderful that there are families out there supporting agricultural research at major research universities."

The 23-year-old Owens grew up in the suburbs of Washington, D.C., and spent his college summers running his own residential landscaping business. At the time, he was an undergraduate at the University of Maryland majoring in horticulture. "I gained a lot of business experience," said Owens, "and I liked being an entrepreneur, but not enough to keep me from going to graduate school."

The graduate school Owens chose was Cornell University, where his lifelong interest in plants and gardening has resulted in him pursuing a master's degree in pomology. "Fruit is my main interest," said Owens. "And in New York State, studying fruit means studying apples."

Owens is working with horticultural scientist Ed Stover, at the Experiment Station's Hudson Valley Laboratory in Highland, N.Y. "We have two particular projects," said Owens. "Both of them involve the use of a plant growth regulator. In one project, we are trying to induce the early flowering of apple trees by using the growth regulator to inhibit a plant hormone. In the other project, we are using the same growth regulator to improve the vigor of apple nursery stock."

After getting his master's degree in August 1997, Owens plans to continue studying for his doctorate. After that, he hopes to become the equivalent of a professor at a major land grant university practicing horticultural science — "preferably in pomology," said Owens.

The Perrine scholarship was established by David Perrine (Cornell '22), in 1993, in support of pomology research work at the Geneva Experiment Station. Perrine, a prominent orchardist from Centralia, Illinois, established the generous gift in memory of his wife, Fanny French Perrine, whom he met and fell in love with while at Cornell in the 1920s. At the time, Fanny was a student in bacteriology and David a student in pomology.

Fanny, who was often called "Superwoman," by her husband, ran many of the farm's activities and was deeply involved in community activities.

David and his brother, Alden (Cornell '47), were partners in the Perrine Orchard, farming 600 acres of peaches, apples, and pears. Jim Cummins, professor emeritus of horticultural sciences at Geneva, who has known and admired the Perrine family for many years, said David, who died this past year, "was the best fruit grower in the Midwest." He was a leader in the fruit industry, with a long and distinguished record as an apple and peach grower, president of the National Peach Council, a member of the National Apple Institute, and president of the Illinois State Horticulture Society.

"Dave continued to be active in dwarf fruit tree experimentation even when he was in his 90s," said Cummins, who first met the Perrines after World War II. David and Fanny were instrumental in Cummins continuing his studies in pomology at Cornell after he finished his undergraduate course work at the University of Illinois.

The $2,000 Perrine Scholarship Award is credited to the research account of the student's thesis adviser with the stipulation that it be used to support the student's research program. In 1995, it was awarded to Thomas E. Clark, who is pursuing a master's degree at Cornell, and conducting a research project on chemical thinning with Terence Robinson. In 1994, it was awarded to Patrick Conner, a doctoral student in pomology whose research with Susan Brown focuses on the genetic mapping of apples and the identification of certain sequences in the apple genome that determine traits, such as size, flavor, and color.

Hernley's Adds White Tractors, Planters

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Hernley's Farm Equipment, serving area farmers for 10 years, is an authorized White tractor and planter dealership, providing sales and service support for White tractors from 65 to 215 PTO horsepower, and White pull-type and mounted planters, including rigid, forward fold, and vertical fold models.

"The addition of White tractors and planters will help us continue to meet the needs of our customers by offering equipment with features and accessories previously not available through our dealerships," said Duane Hernley, president.

"Adding these new product lines is also in keeping with our goal of serving as a one-stop resource for agricultural equipment and maintaining overall customer satisfaction," explained Hernely.

Steven Gochnauer, parts manager, said the dealership will stock replacement parts for all present owners of White tractors and planters, and maintain a parts inventory for new equipment purchasers.

"For equipment down emergencies, we can source a needed part from any of twelve strategically-located North American parts warehouses. Most of these orders are shipped the same day they are placed," said Gochnauer.

Service department technicians at Hernley's Farm Equipment are experienced at performing professional maintenance and repair work on farm equipment. The department is fully equipped to service White equipment.

Dekalb Builds Corn Production Plant

DEKALB, Ill. — Dekalb Genetics Corporation announced that construction was set to begin in November on a new seed corn conditioning plant on an 80-acre site near Constantine, Mich.

When completed, this facility will become the largest seed corn plant in Dekalb's production network, which currently comprises 14 plants located in six states.

"Building this facility helps consolidate growing and conditioning operations at one of our major irrigated corn production areas," said Nate McGuire, Dekalb's vice president of operations.

Dekalb is not new to the area, having grown seed in the sandy loam soils around Constantine for 20 years. Dekalb has 5,000 corn acres under contract with farmers in the St. Joseph and Kalamazoo areas.

Construction of this new facility will be conducted in two phases. The first phase under way is scheduled for completion by 1997's harvest.

"We plan to have dryer capacity for approximately 300,000 bushels," said McGuire.

Equipment being built and installed during the first phase includes a husk-on harvesting and unloading system, seed dryers, shellers, bulk storage facilities, office spaces and truck scales. Dekalb estimates that phase one project construction will cost more than $10 million.

Dekalb's new Constantine plant will be staffed by a comintation of full-time employees and seasonal workers to accommodate manpower-intensive requirements of detasslling and harvesting.

Second-phase construction additions include additonal seed dryers, a seed sizing/packaging facility, and finished warehousing. When complete, this seed production complex will total nearly a dozen large buildings.

"We estimate this facility may cost $25 million when it's totally completed by the year 2000," said McGuire.

BREAKAGE OF BONES DURING MEAT PROCESSING

Dr. Carol V. Gay
Professor Of Molecular And Cell Biology And Poultry Science

Recently I was thinking about my laboratory studies on bone formation in terms of relevance to domestic avian species.

In reading on this topic I discovered a number of studies that identified the types of bones that tend to break during processing broilers for the meat consumer market. Particularly susceptible are the ribs, wishbone, collar bone, and bones that form the pelvis.

The amount of breakage reported in one study was astounding, with an average of three broken bones occurring per bird after evisceration. Only 3 percent of the birds had any breaks before being stunned. Breakage can occur at any stage of processing, including when birds are put in and removed from transport cages, as a consequence of stunning, during mechanical picking, and during handling along the eviscerating line.

Ribs and pelvic bones tend to be broken during mechanical picking and when carcasses are cleaned following offal removal. Pelvic bones may also break when birds are caught.

The sternum and keel are mainly damaged when birds are caught. Stunning with carbon dioxide or argon gas resulted in fewer broken bones, by about 50 percent, than when electrical stunning is used.

The main problem here is that wing flapping during stunning results in broken wing bones. Both wings and leg bones tend to be stronger than the flat bones (ribs, pelvic girdle, sternum, and keel) because of exercise due to walking and maintaining balance by wing flapping.

Several ways of reducing bone breakage in broilers can be considered. The first might be to genetically select for the trait of calmness in birds intended for further processing. The birds need to have been fed sufficient amounts of calcium, protein, and other nutrients.

The least damaging stunning method needs to be employed. Personnel who handle live birds need to be made aware of the need for gentle handling techniques, and shown what those techniques are. An evaluation of handling procedures during picking and along the eviscerating line would likely reveal some problems to which appropriate adjustments could be made.

No easy means of assessing breakage exists. Palpation can reveal larger broken bones; however, dissection is more likely necessary to reveal smaller bone breaks.

A non-invasive means of identifying breaks would be to use X-rays. However, X-ray machines are costly and require a fairly high level of technical expertise to operate safely. Special training also is required to know how to "read" an X-ray film.

Pa. DHIA Moves Forward On All Fronts

DAVE SLUSSER
General Manager

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Pa. DHIA had a productive year, in finances, strategic long-range planning, laboratory testing, MUN, protein testing, dairy records processing and internal management procedures.

All of this has resulted in better management information for our members that no other DHIA can offer and that our members need to make their herds profitable.

Finances

Our cooperative association has completed a year that will approach $200,000 profit as a result of cost-cutting steps taken in 1994, good internal management, and business growth. The changes made in 1994 resulted in our total operation being more efficient and competitive.

With the introduction of new services like MUN (Milk Urea Nitrogen) testing and the nation's first MUN Herd Summary Report, business grew throughout Pennsylvania and New York state.

All employees have been put on a standardized pay and benefit program that is fair and allows for personal growth.

We are constantly analyzing the entire cooperative for efficient productivity.

New Product And Services

MUN testing and the MUN Herd Summary Report introduced Oct. 1, 1995 by Pa. DHIA has resulted in 312,005 MUN samples tested in 1,731 herds over a 12-month period. These numbers are unprecedented in America and most of the world.

This data has been stored in our mainframe computer and is being used by research institutions across the country for dairy nutrition research. No one has this kind of information in such a large volume.

The result of this research will enhance our knowledge of MUN and how better to use it in the future, and help our members more profitably feed their cows.

To enhance MUN values, we are introducing true protein summary information on the MUN report.

Pa. DHIA On The Internet

During the spring, Pa. DHIA became the first DHIA on the Internet.

Members, veterinarians, nutritionists, and farm consultants can now access herd management information, in whatever form they want, easily and more efficiently through the Internet.

Automatic downloads of reports to member personal computers, as soon as the herds are processed, are available in customized form.

We can automatically download reports to your E-mail account from the Lab Bulletin Board for component results and SCC.

This service is setting the pace for the whole DHIA system.

Sensenigs Win Top Herd Management Award

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEWMANSTOWN (Lebanon Co.) — Winning the 1996 top title for herd management among members of the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association is recognition of the business approach that Nelson and Susan Sensenig, of Newmanstown, have applied to their dairy operation since getting started on their own in 1987.

The couple, owners of Meadow Springs Farm, was featured by Lancaster Farming in April 1994 for a variety of reasons, not the least of which was the fact that the 1993 average production by their 94-head milking string was above 30,000 pounds of milk. It was the top producing herd per-cow in Lebanon County that year, and one of the highest in the state.

They were really featured, however, because of their management practices. To Nelson and Susan, farming is a business to support a wholesome way of life to raise a family, and successful dairy business means management.

Last year, Meadow Springs Farm was the top averaging herd for milk and protein. The 94 Holsteins made an average of 30,758 pounds of milk, 961 pounds of fat, and 980 pounds of protein.

This year again, it is the highest averaging herd for milk and protein with 33,329 pounds of milk, 1,085 pounds of butterfat, and 1,044 pounds of protein.

This year also, the Meadow Springs herd had five of the top 10 producing cows for protein production, including the top producer, cow No. 123. She made 1,416 pounds protein, 44,470 pounds milk, and 1,033 pounds of fat.

The Sensenigs also had four of the top 10 milk-producing cows, with his No. 65 cow being second in the state with 47,293 pounds milk, 3-percent protein and 3.7 percent fat. Cow 65's fat production ranked it tenth in Pa.DHIA.

An increase in average herd production is a significant part of the formula used to determine points in making the herd management award, but other considerations in management are also given substantial weight.

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania DHIA's DRPC further solidified its position as the nation's No.1 provider of Internet services for DHIA records and related information technology, recently adding a number of new services to its Internet package.

All of Pa. DHIA's mainframe, lab, and processing services can now be obtained via Pa. DHIA's web pages at:

The page provides access to online records for registered users of the DHIA ARIS system, as well as personnel contact lists, e-mail, the latest resource material on MUN testing and reporting, graphical benchmarks, DHIA research articles, sales and service information, and links to agriculturally related sites all over the world.

In addition, Pa. DHIA has added a number of capabilities to the front end of its lab operations. Sample analysis results for Offical, Unofficial, and Sample Only programs can now all be obtained via an Internet access to the lab bulletin board, or via electronic mail — within minutes of herds being tested in the DHIA lab.

Pa. DHIA has offered the access to dairy records for nearly a year. And the program has really taken off according to Jim Boyer, the Dairy Records Processing Center manager for Pennsylvania DHIA.

"About 35 percent of our offline reports for ARIS - which is the bulk of our access by consultants - are now received by way of the Internet," Boyer said. "Consultants can retrieve information via FTP service or have test versions of most reports delivered directly to their own electronic mail boxes.

ARIS is a mature program, now going into its eleventh year, but we've added a number of Internet

DHIA Downsizes Board Of Directors

DAVE SLUSSER
General Manager

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The board of directors of Pa. DHIA has voted to downsize itself from 18 directors to 11 directors.

The new board will be elected at the district meetings set for January and February 1997.

As a result of strategic long range planning, which has been underway for the last two years, the board voted at the October 1996 meeting on the proposal.

The Planning Committee carefully studied every aspect of our board structure and governing procedures, before making a recommendation to the board.

Pa. DHIA Milk Urea Nitrogen (MUN) Research Update

JOE HAYES
Senior Project Leader

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — MUN testing was made available to our members in October 1995. Through October 1996 about 340,000 milk samples have been analyzed for MUN.

Unlike other Dairy Records Processing Centers (DRPCs), your Pa. DHIA DRPC took the extra time and effort to permanently associate MUN results to each individual cow's test day information just like we do for fat, protein, and SNF percentages.

Using the information contained in the "Profile of Feeds Fed" section on side two of your Herd Summary I report, we have also maintained the type, amount, and quality of feeds fed on each of your herd's test days. Once again your DRPC is the industry leader in creating the largest and most complete MUN data base available in the United States.

Dr. James Ferguson of the University of Pennsylvania's New Bolton Center is performing extensive MUN research using Pa. DHIA's MUN data base. Daily updates are made available to Dr. Ferguson via the Internet.

Yes, your DRPC is at the cutting edge of today's cyberspace technology. You will be kept posted on Dr. Ferguson's research through the printed news and Pa. DHIA's Web Page at http://www.dhia.psu.edu.

MUN Frequency Distribution

Frequency distributions were performed within parity (lactation 1, 2, and 3+) and within breed (Holsteins and Jerseys). For first-lactation Holsteins 134,000 test day MUN values were analyzed. The mean was 14.4 milligrams per deciliter (mg/dl) with a standard deviation of 4 mg/dl.

This means that 95 percent of all first lactation Holsteins test day MUN values fell within a range of 6.4-22.4 mg/ld.

Using 4,350 test day MUN values for first-lactation Jerseys, a slightly higher mean was calculated (17 mg/dl) with a standard deviation of 4.4 mg/dl. Thus, 95 percent of all first lactation Jersey test day MUN values fell within a range of 8.2-25.8 mg/dl. A graphic representation of these results may be found in Graph 1 and 2.

MUN By DIM

Holstein test day MUN values were broken out by lactation for 1, 2, and 3+ parity and summarized across days in milk.

This analysis indicates that MUN values appear to decrease as days in milk (DIM) increases, regardless of lactation. There also appears to be a slight decrease in MUN values as lactation number increases. These results appear in Graph 3.

For additional statistical summaries and graphs, please consult our web page.

DHIA To Take New Course In 1997

JIM BOYER
Manager, Pa. DRPC

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — National DHIA is on a crusade to push the new DHIA environment that begins with significant rule changes.

It will become effective on the first day of the new year, but the effects on the industry in general and DHIA members in particular have yet to be determined or satisfactorily explained.

While DHIA will, to a very large extent, stop being a policeman, some rules currently cast in a uniform "Code of Ethics" will remain in place.

How much of that code can, or will, continue in force remains to be seen, and is a matter of vigorous discussion in DHIA circles across the country

In the end, despite a good bit of hype, the real direction for DHIA in the coming years may not be a great deal different from the direction of the old DHIA, at least in Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania has a history of innovation, and that tradition has continued throughout the last decade.

Pennsylvania DHIA was the first DHIA in the country to test for protein, and the first to test for SCC. Pennsylvania had the first DHIA in the country with a centralized milk testing lab, and the first lab in the country that was electronically linked to a dairy records processing center.

In the '80s, Pennsylvania DHIA had the only processing center to offer both SNF and protein, and in the '90s the first and only processing center to maintain the MUN database.

By the end of the year, when Pennsylvania DHIA begins to test for "true protein," it will be one of the first labs in the country to offer that option, and the only DRPC to track it as well.

Pa. DHIA was the first and only DHIA processing center to offer all DRPC services on the global Internet

On the field services side, the first LER herds in the country were tested in Pennsylvania, and in the early years of its inception no DHIA affiliate promoted the program more aggressively than Pennsylvania DHIA.

Pa. DHIA currently has more herds on AP test plans than any major DHIA, a higher percentage of useable records than any other DHIA records processing center, and more herds on innovative test than any other DHIA affiliate in the United States.

Jim Boyer

So the innovation so strongly encouraged by National DHIA has been largely driven by Pennsylvania DHIA, a tradition of which Pennsylvania farmers should be justifiably proud.

While no one disputes the importance of getting DHIA out of an enforcement practice that was sometimes arbitrary, often cumbersome, and always expensive, much of the current furor over DHIA's new face nationally is a consequence of the effect on genetic evaluations. But this component of the DHIA program has been of steadily diminishing importance to DHIA members for several years.

Under the Code of Ethics that replaces the old rules structure, dairymen on all types of DHIA testing plans will be able to custom tailor their own programs, choosing how frequently to test, how often they should ship samples to DHIA milk labs, and even how often (if ever) they may want to supervise their own test days

But again, Pa. DHIA already leads the nation in providing these types of services

Rules necessary to the organizational efficiency and standardization of data collection procedures for all DHIA's, will be retained. But for the most part these will serve as guidelines for a uniform but flexible program under which service rather than rule enforcement receives the major emphasis.

The key to understanding the new DHIA environment is this: the end user of records will now determine their value, based on comprehensive information about the conditions under which the information was collected and prepared.

Unfortunately, a number of industry sources have seized on this outlook as a justification for reduced DHIA testing. This is unfortunate for a number of reasons.

First, genetic testing is a by-product of our management program and not the purpose of DHIA. As end users, each AI unit and breed association will need to determine the genetic value of different kinds of DHIA service. Many have yet to make these decisions.

The USDA Sire Evaluation program itself has yet (if ever) to completely determine the weight assigned to all testing plans.

For example, an infrequently owner-sampled program will receive lower genetic weighting than 12 supervised 2x tests. The weighted values are yet to be resolved and will probably change over time.

Many AI organizations have not decided what differentials will be applied to programs with reduced supervision by DHIA employees.

The Holstein Association and Jersey Club will have additional requirements as well.

Our advice to farmers is to consult the end user of your DHIA records to find out what their requirements are before you change tests.

DHIA can't and shouldn't answer these questions and you may very well be in for a disappointment if you change programs and find out later that your PTA or pedigree has less value than you hoped

Above all, farmers interested in creating their own testing plans, or those opting for reduced levels of services need to understand that not all record codes will be assigned full credit for genetic evaluations.

As presently offered, Owner Sampled plans will be edited much more severely than official records plans, and individual animals whose records would normally qualify for genetic evaluation by USDA under traditional programs will not be evaluated at all under owner-sampled programs, even with the advent of the new DHIA rules.

A cow will still need 10 tests in a 305-day period, and be on an "official program" in order to receive full credit for a genetic evaluation.

While some have taken this as an indication that only 10 tests will be required for a DHIA program during the year, a requirement of 305 days per 10 tests is essentially no different from the traditional DHIA program that emphasizes 12 tests per year, except for herds with rigid, seasonal freshening practices.

Finally, keep in mind that while individual lactations with reduced weighting will go into genetic evaluations for herds with some (or all) owner-sampled records, no PTA's on individual animals will be returned to any DHIA processing centers for these herds.

Instead, the individual lactation records will be used behind the scenes in proving bulls and in the records of other animals that remain in herds on official testing plans.

Yet another reason why the emphasis on end users is unfortunate is that all too often it causes DHIA members to look away from their own farms.

How often does your veterinarian need to evaluate Somatic Cell Count to control mastitis? How frequently does your vet or nutritionist need DHIA information to evaluate the efficiency of your feeding, reproduction, or herd health?

Issues that are national in scope frequently overlook vets, feed dealers, financial consultants and other agribusiness support people as important end users of DHIA records.

And remember, the most important end user of DHIA record is you. How valuable is your time? Do you have extra help on test day to collect data and milk samples accurately? Can you really manage your herd profitably if you don't have current, accurate information every month? Will you keep timely records without a DHIA technician on hand to prompt for them?

Every dairyman will need to wrestle with these questions, while keeping in mind the rule to consult with the person making use of the information to determine its value

Right now there is confusion among technicians, members, and traditional DHIA allies. But this will not be the case for Pennsylvania DHIA.

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Pa. DHIA is rated for the job it does as a service provider by National DHIA on a yearly basis. We are proud to announce that Pa. DHIA received 100 percent on the NCDHIP Scorecard for 1996.

The lab analyzes approximately 330,000 samples per month. The machines are monitored at start up and throughout the day on an hourly basis.

There are checks in the programs that monitors each cow as it is being tested with ranges for different breeds averages for quality.

The lab operates with two shifts six days a week for efficiency. The lab currently has less than a 24-hour turnaround time for herds tested.

The lab can generate reports to the members or the members can obtain lab data by Lab Bulletin Board as it's being tested. Our members can access Pa. DHIA through ARIS or by Internet.

Annual Meeting

"Pa. DHIA Looks to the Future," is the theme of the upcoming annual meeting planned for Feb. 14.

Now is the time to start thinking about attending the corporate meeting. This meeting will take place at the Days Inn Penn State, State College, on Feb. 14.

We are planning an agenda that will appeal to many of our DHIA members. We are hoping you will attend.

We feel this year's program will be exciting. The agenda will consist of new component testing (true protein), changes to the National DHIA rules, a delegate from National DHIA, and a very excellent explanation on how to save money by using Pa. DHIA's Reproductive Management Report.

We will hold an awards banquet at lunch, recognizing our top three Herd Management Award winners.

Pa. DHIA's Data Processing Manager Jim Boyer is to conduct a hands-on workshop on Thursday night and Friday afternoon. This workshop will help bring our members into the future using the computer.

Boyer will help those who attend by giving them information on what computer to purchase, what software will be needed and how to make the Internet work for you.

Informational sessions regarding accessing records electronically will also be covered. These sessions will be limited.

The cost for the annual meeting will be sent out to our members in their monthly report envelope, or they can call for a registration form to the Pa. DHIA Office at (814) 865-1517, or fax (814) 865-3924, or E-mail dlb@vm.dhia.psu.edu, or write to Pa. DHIA c/o Dixie Burris, Orchard Road, University Park, PA 16802.

District Directors Meetings

In other news, the district meetings for local DHIA directors are planned for January.

There are meetings scheduled around the state, corresponding to the new 11 districts. These meetings are held every year primarily for directors of local DHIA committee/board.

It is an opportunity for directors and management to get together for discussion of issues and developments affecting DHIA members statewide.

This year, the election of directors for the state DHIA board will be done at all 11 district meetings.

We are encouraging all counties to have their delegates at their respective meetings, as the bylaws indicate a quorum is needed to hold an election.

All meetings begin at 9:30 a.m. and will end after lunch, tentatively set for 3 p.m.

As noted before, Pennsylvania DHIA has consistently pioneered an innovative approach to DHIA testing. Our Labor Efficient Records Program was one of the first in the nation. And the LER testing plan anticipates most — if not all — of the changes proposed under the new operation environment.

For several years we have encouraged enterprising members to consider alternate test day procedures, including 3x/1x AP, partial owner supervision, partial owner sampling and the like.

Some, like 3x/1x AP and Advanced Notification have remained popular. Others involving reduced testing or owner supervision have declined in use.

While other DHIAs look towards a bumpy ride, Pennsylvania DHIA's financial outlook — even with the advent of innovative testing — has continued to improve. Pennsylvania DHIA has been preparing for, and living in, the future dreamed of by National DHIA for a long, long time.

Each county association will have one delegate for every 40 voting members or fraction thereof, or one delegate minimum if there is less than 40 members in a county.

The delegate election procedure and numbers will be the same as before.

The board is mandated by the bylaws to review the districts every three years, and because of the Strategic Long Range Planning Committee recommendations, they decided to downsize at the same time.

The procedure selected by the board and dictated by the bylaws will require that all director positions shall be declared vacant and nominations shall be taken for a new director at each district by the delegates present.

District 1 will elect a new director for one year, District 2 for two years, and District 3 for three years; and each district director thereafter, up to the total of 11 districts, shall be elected for a one-, two-, or three-year term of office.

Succeeding elections will be for a three-year term.

Each county unit is strongly encouraged to participate in this winter's district meetings, so it is important they are represented by their delegates. The entire board is up for election.

Other topics that will be presented at the local and district meetings are the new National DHIA Code of Ethics, true protein testing, MUN analysis, and the Heifer Net project under development.

Pa. DHIA Heifer Net Sets Stage

JOY HAYES
Senior Project Leader

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Pa. DHIA is designing a new cutting edge program that will take a dairyman's herd into cyberspace and the information super highway.

This new program will be called Heifer Net and it will electronically match the requirements of dairy animal buyers and suppliers.

The dairyman will set the asking price and the buyer will set the minimum standards.

The Heifer Net will search the Heifer Net data base and prepare a list of qualifying animals for the buyer.

The Heifer Net program will actually be made up of five different Pa. DHIA Nets: Heifer Net will contain heifers for sale; Cow Net will contain cows for sale; Bull Net will contain bulls for sale; Unborn Net will contain calves that are yet to be born that will be for sale; and Embryo Net will contain embryos for sale.

Each new animal enrolled in one of the Heifer Net programs will be electronically added to the Heifer Net data base. This process will be automatic and will require little or no input from the dairyman or Pa. DHIA technician.

Each Heifer Net data base record will contain the animal's identification and genetic merit, identification and genetic merit of the animal's sire, dam, maternal grand dam, maternal grand sire, reproductive data (if bred), production data (if milking), body weight and condition, and minimum asking price of the animal.

Individuals wishing to purchase animals through the Heifer Net will complete a "Search Option Request Form." This form will allow the Heifer Net programs to determine the breed, sex, age, and weight of animals being requested.

Minimum genetic merit standards for animals and their ancestors may also be set by the buyer. Minimum production levels may be set for the animal (if milking), dam, and maternal grand dam.

If bred animals are being requested, requirements may be placed on due dates and genetic merit of service sires.

An individual using this service will also report the number of animals required, number of heifers per herd, and offering price for qualifying heifers.

Using the Heifer Net data base, Pa. DHIA will be able to produce pedigrees for any animal in the system. These pedigrees will be available on paper or via the Internet.

The Heifer Net and all these additional features will be available through our Web Page on the World Wide Web at http://www.dhia.psu.edu.

Now with the use of Heifer Net and the Internet, buyers and suppliers of dairy animals can be electronically matched with the stroke of a few computer keys.

Keep your eyes on the printed news, talk to your Pa. DHIA technician, and sign on to Pa. DHIA's Web Page to keep posted on the progress of the Heifer Net.

cows, groups and the whole herd. It also includes cost analysis and projected cost for your heifer program.

Pa. DHIA is the first and only DHIA to offer this service and has been doing it since Nov. 1, 1995.

Long Range Strategic Planning

Over the last year and a half, the board of directors has been involved in strategic, long-range planning.

They have studied the needs of our members that will enhance their competitiveness into the 21st century, and set the course for Pa. DHIA to meet those needs. The plan has four major areas of concern: new products and services; market development and governing efficiences; internal management strategies; and strategic alliances.

New products and services have already spun off from Long Range Planning Committee ideas.

Pennsylvania includes a broad array of dairy farms from small to large. To improve their bottom line and profit, our services must enable our members to improve production cost through more research on MUN and performance enconomics.

Also, because our members have the highest percentage of identified animals and useable records for genetic evaluations, the long-range plan includes using this advantage to bring more dollars into our family farm operations.

The result is the development of "Heifer Net."

On our farmer-owned and controlled DRPC data base, we have around 500,000 dairy animals of all breeds, registered and grade, and all forms of testing programs. This includes heifers, cows, bulls, and even unborn calves.

"Heifer Net" includes an efficient network in which we can find cattle in our members' herds that are sought by buyers throughout the world. It will also include heifer raising costs and pedigrees and certificates of identification.

The program is presently under development and will be introduced in stages over the next two years.

Governance changes under the long range plan include board downsizing. As a result, the board restructuring includes going from 18 directors to 11 and is being introduced to the delegates at the district and annual meetings of the association this winter.

The internal management phases of the plan include good management principles needed to operate the cooperative in an efficient manner and employee tracking to improve the opportunity for good people to advance within the system.

Pa. DHIA's board is exploring opportunities to more efficiently serve the members in a mature market through strategic alliances, joint ventures or possible mergers. In the highly competitive marketplace that our members now find themselves, their institutions that serve them must look for better, more efficient ways to serve them and enhance their farm's profits.

The last year has been very busy for the board and employees of Pa. DHIA. Our board is determined to move DHIA from a reactive to a proactive force for dairy farmers. The mission of Pa. DHIA and its long range plan is proactive, and next year will be more action packed. Stay tuned!

Pa. DHIA On The World Wide Web

features to bring it up to date. The Internet is hot, and we are there."

Exactly how "hot" is reflected in the exploding growth of the Internet in general and the World Wide Web in particular.

Information available from Neilsen Media Research indicates that as much as 17 percent of the total population of the United States and Canada has access to the Internet, and of those, nearly 20 million people are currently using the World Wide Web.

Commerce on the Web — still in its infancy — is mushrooming as quickly as the proliferation of new sites. To date, more than 2.5 million people have made purchases online. Forty-three percent of all North American businesses now have some form of advertising on the World Wide Web.

Pa. DHIA's foray into cyberspace has been nearly as aggressive, but Boyer said that services currently offered represent just the tip of the iceberg.

"We want to make more resource material available to people who support the dairy industry," he said.

"One of our best kept secrets is the so-called 'Gray Manual' that explains all our reports. But it's difficult and expensive to get updates out.

"By putting this kind of information on the Web page as a series of articles, people interested in DHIA support will be able to select and print only the information that interests them. And we'll be able to maintain the documentation more easily, and more importantly, we'll be able to do it in real time.

"Just recently, we made available online many of the most commonly requested formats of our DHIA year-end Almanac," Boyer said.

"Interested in the high herd for protein for 1996? See us on the web. How about the top producers in breed for our annual management awards? That's there too."

Despite rapid, even rabid growth, in-place technology does dampen the pace of some change, Boyer said.

Despite rapid, even rabid growth, in-place technology does dampen the pace of some change, Boyer said.

"To most effectively make use of new programs, we really have to move our technicians and end-users to a graphical environment such as Microsoft Windows," he said.

"DOS is dead, dead, dead. We dont' recommend that people doing new setups even buy DOS-based programs anymore. It's completely yesterday," Boyer said.

"Unfortunately, there are a lot of legacy applications in the countryside, including programs we've written for our own technicians. But we'll change that, and as people see the new applications available on the Web and in Windows programs, they aren't going to want to use their old DOS stuff anymore anyway."

The new World Wide Web page contains links to supporting industries like breed associations, AI studs, farm publications, even dairy humor, and offers new, electronic mail, advertising and other services to industry cooperators, and of course, DHIA members.

"The real power of the Internet is in commerce," Boyer said, "and a great deal of that capability remains untapped.

"But the World Wide Wed is now coming into its own. It is very much a gold-rush mentality. By some estimates almost 60 percent of new Web sites on earth were added in the first few months of 1996. In order to capitalize on that kind of environment you've got to get there firstest with the mostest," Boyer said.

"We intend to make this kind of marketing power available to DHIA members for selling heifers, cows, embryos, maybe even equipment. We'll provide the latest in new analytical tools like MUN and true protein. And we'll offer access to resources like vets, nutritionists and other agribusiness consultants who support DHIA.".

Dave Slusser, Pa. DHIA's general manager, elaborated.

"We see nothing but possibilities. At a time when people — especially those with their own personal computers — are questioning the value of DHIA, the new services we're implementing showcase the great benefit of belonging to a cooperative association," Slusser said.

"For example, one service we envision would allow people to offer advertising to purchasers who want heifers. A dairyman on our heifer program will be able to hook up with buyers literally anywhere in the world. And by providing a one-stop shopping center with database capability, those buyers will be able to fill orders for the exact kinds and numbers of calves they want, easily and quickly.

"That gives real value to both the purchaser and the seller, and that's something you can't do with a computer all by yourself," Slusser said.

"I see us being able to connect dairymen to the right vets, feed mills, equipment dealers, and financial consultants to solve the problems of their individual farms. That kind of networking operation just won't be available to people who're isolated from DHIA."

"We also see the so-called 'intranet applications' of this technology as being vital to the continued efficiency of our operation," Boyer added.

"In intranet applications you apply the power of the Web to more effectively reach people within your own organization. We will make these and other products available to our field staff, especially DHIA technicians.

"We want them to be able to dial in 24 hours per day to get the most up-to-the-minute information on herd status, lab components, news, e-mail, employee bulletins, even weather," Boyer said.

"Now, while all of these were possible to some extent through our lab BBS and the ARIS system, we really are talking about taking a quantum leap in the availability and ease of accessing information. Anybody who's ever used a typical BBS system and then hooked into the Web will tell you, it's like the difference between rehydroginated palm fat and real butter."

Sensenigs

The couple first farmed for three years at Philhaven Farms in Lebanon County, where Nelson has credited Aaron Shirk, the farm manager, with teaching him about milking cows.

One of the first things they did at their own 177-acre farm was to expand stalls and construct silos for silage and haylage. Since then, they opened up the barn and installed tunnel ventilation with six, 48-inch fans.

In mid-1994, the end of the barn opposite the fans was opened and an air-cooling system installed that works on drawing air into the barn through water to achieve evaporative cooling.

Sensenig said the system lowers the air temperature inside the barn from 7 to 20 degrees below the ambient temperature, depending on humidity.

He's been using the cooler for the past two years.

A team approach — with veterinarian, nutritionist and Nelson working together — was incorporated early on and continues.

In early 1994, just after Monsanto Corp. received approval from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to sell its form of recombinant bovine somatotropin, the Sensenig herd was on it.

The cows still receive BST, are milked three times per day and are fed TMR at least five times per day.

Cow comfort is emphasized.

Nelson said he feeds four pounds of cotton seed, corn silage rolled when bagged, haylage, and a custom supplement consisting of soymeal, steamed soybeans, corn, distiller's grain, and some fortification. That has been consistent for some time.

For the past year he said he has top dressed a complete feed top dress of 17-percent protein. He dropped that back for the past two months and said it has been working.

Maryland DHIA Report For November

The November Dairy Herd Improvement information for dairy herds from the DHI processing center in Provo, Utah. The list includes herds from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia. The information is listed by herd name, county association, number of cows in the herd and the average production per cow in the herd based on Energy Corrected Milk (ECM). ECM combines milk production and components.

The ECM formula is: (7.2 x lbs. protein) + (12.95 x lbs. fat) + (.327 x lbs. milk). To be included, the herd must have 10 cows averaging 65 pounds or more of ECM per cow, per day. All herds reported are on official DHI or DHIR test. Also listed are the top ten herds in Maryland for the Brown Swiss, Guernseys, and Jerseys, and the top seven herds for Ayrshires.

Md. Department Of Agriculture To Dispose Of Unusable Pesticides

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) Secretary Lewis R. Riley announced that the department will be offering its unusable agricultural pesticide disposal program in 1997 to growers in Calvert, Charles, Prince George's, and St. Mary's counties.

The disposal program, sponsored and funded by MDA, is conducted as a cooperative effort with support from the Maryland Department of the Environment, the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, and various agricultural organizations.

"This program is an excellent opportunity for growers to safely dispose of old, banned, unwanted or unusable pesticides that may have been stored for years on their property and to remove a potential source of environmental contamination," said Riley.

Proper disposal of unusable pesticides has been recognized by the Chesapeake Bay Program as a high priority because of the potential for improperly stored pesticides to contaminate the Chesapeake Bay or other water sources. Under the Chesapeake Bay Basinwide Toxics Reduction and Prevention Strategy of 1994, the Bay states agreed to implement pesticide collection and disposal programs by the year 2000.

"I am pleased to report that the department has been conducting an unusable pesticide disposal program at several locations throughout Maryland during the past 2 years," said Riley.

Since 1995, MDA has conducted pesticide disposal programs for farmers in Caroline, Dorchester, Frederick, Harfort, Talbot, and Washington counties. More than 48,000 pounds of unusable pesticides were collected in the six counties from 122 farm sites. MDA received a grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to help fund the collection programs.

The 1997 pesticide disposal program is available free of charge to farmers or producers, such as Christmas tree growers, nurserymen, and greenhouse operators. The deadline for farmers to register to participate is Feb. 15. Registration forms to participate in the program are available from Cooperative Extension Service offices in Calvert, Charles, Prince George's and St. Mary's counties and from MDA.

IPM Label On Supermarket Vegetables First For The Nation

GENEVA, N.Y. — Been to Wegmans lately? Checked out their canned vegetable shelves since mid-November? If not, you're in for a surprise. Wegmans is now selling canned peas and corn under IPM labels. Look for a blue ribbon with the acronym "IPM" and a map of New York centered in it.

The backs of the labels explain that "Through IPM, growers use less pesticide over time by taking other steps to reduce pest damage. Your purchase supports the efforts of growers who truly care about the environment."

"IPM" (integrated pest management) is a multifaceted approach to the problems growers face due to insects, diseases, weeds, and other agricultural pests. It focuses on alternatives to chemical pesticides, such as prevention and monitoring, biological controls, and pest-resistant plant varieties. The New York State IPM Program — created in 1985 as a partnership program of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets Cornell University, and Cornell Cooperative Extension — works with producers of 25 major crops in every county in New York to reduce their reliance on pesticides while maintaining high-quality, affordable products.

The new IPM labels represent the culmination of two years' efforts by growers, Wegmans, Comstock Michigan Fruit (the food processing company that supplies Wegmans' fruits and vegetables), and Cornell. These efforts have involved:

• Cooperative extension educators teaching growers how to use IPM practices.

• Growers, IPM experts at the experiment stations in Geneva and Ithaca, and representatives from Wegmans and Comstock jointly determining the "elements of IPM" — IPM protocols — for each of six vegetable crops plus fresh-market sweet corn (elements for beets, cabbage for kraut, carrots, peas, snap beans, and sweet corn are posted on the IPM homepage at <http://www.nysaes.cornell.edu/ipmnet/ny/vegetables/elements/index.html>).

• Ownership of the New York State IPM Program logo by the Cornell Research Foundation.

• A license agreement giving Wegmans a nonexclusive right to use the IPM logo.

• Verification by Comstock and Wegmans that the IPM growers followed the agreed-upon element.

• Brochures, radio ads, and in-store movies developed by Wegmans to enlighten consumers about the term "IPM" and how sustainable agriculture benefits us all.

One beneficial outgrowth of this effort is the defining of IPM in the form of the "elements." Curt Petzoldt, assistant director of the New York State IPM Program and a key player in this effort, points out that the elements have been designed "to be flexible so they will fit a lot of different operations with differing IPM needs. But within that flexibility, they provide a means for the public to begin to understand IPM and to become aware of the efforts that many farmers have been making toward environmental stewardship."

Not only do the IPM vegetables provide an opening for increasing consumers' understanding of growers' positive efforts, but they are a means of communicating to the public about the work of agricultural scientists at Cornell.

"Talk about a direct link!" said Jim Tette, director of the New York State IPM Program. "These new labels represent the most direct link we have been able to develop thus far between consumers and the agricultural research and implemantation we do at Cornell. They're a tangible message to the public that we are doing positive things — right here in Geneva and Ithaca."

Wegmans Food Markets first approached Cornell in 1994, seeking the means to offer its consumers IPM-grown sweet corn. Wegmans' shoppers were so positive about the chance to choose IPM-grown, fresh-market sweet corn the following summer that Wegmans decided to expand to IPM-grown canned and frozen vegetables in 1996. Comstock Michigan Fruit, Wegmans' supplier of processed fruits and vegetables, easily found 10 of its growers who had already adopted most of the available IPM methods, and a deal was struck.

Now that IPM-labeled goods are available, consumers have the chance to cast their votes for the future of biointensive pest management by choosing these goods over other labels. If bioiptensive pest management is to expand ". . . farmers, consumers and others responsible for managing pests will make it happen by consciously choosing how to spend their money," suggests the author of Pest Management at the Crossroads (1996 Consumers Union, Yonkers, NY).

Look for IPM-labelled frozen vegetables at Wegmans stores early in 1997.

Grain Producers New President

EDGEWATER, Md. — Melvin Baile Jr. of New Windsor, Carroll County, is the new president of the Maryland Grain Producers Association.

Baile succeeds Robert Hutchison of Cordova, Talbot County, who retired from the board after serving the maximum of six years.

Hutchison was one of four veteran MGPA board members who were required by MGPA bylaws to end their voting board status this year. The others were Kevin Anderson of Princess Anne, Somerset County; George "Bucky" Morris of Centreville, Queen Anne's County; and Edward Stanfield of Randallstown, Baltimore County.

Hutchison and Stanfield will continue to serve, however, in other official capacities - Stanfield as the MGPA delegate to the Maryland Farm Bureau and Hutchison as the alternative Maryland delegate to the National Corn Development Foundation board and as chairman of the MGPA board's Grain Laws Committee. Serving with Baile for 1996-97 is Philip "Chip" Councell Jr. of Cordova, Talbot County, as vice president and W. Drew Stabler of Gaithersburg, Montgomery County, who continues as MGPA treasurer.

Lawrence Meeks of Westminster, Carroll County, is in his second year as president of the Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board (MGPUB), the 17-member organization that administers the five-year-old grain checkoff program in the state. Breck Debnam of Chestertown, Kent County, is MGPUB vice president. Charles "Jamie" Jamison of Beallsville, Montgomery County, continues as treasurer of the MGPUB board. Robert Raver of Dickerson is secretary.

The new members of the MGPA board, who also will serve as MGPUB members, are Coulborne Swift of Marion, Somerset County; Mike Whiteside of Queenstown, Queen Anne's County; Mike Clark of Clarkesville, Howard County; and Jim Saathoff of Denton, Caroline County. Saathoff had been serving as an at-large MGPA director and had requested appointment as a regional voting member of the board.

There are also three new at-large, non-farmer members of the MGPA board, all from the agribusiness community.

Big Turnout Expected At Tri-State Horticultural Meetings

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Approximately 1,400 fruit and vegetable growers are expected to be on hand for the Tri-State Horticultural Meetings here in Hershey.

Set for Jan. 28-30, "this year's program has something for everyone," Myron Hurff, president of the New Jersey State Horticultural Society.

In addition to a three-day program for tree and small fruit growers, a vegetable grower's conference is run concurrently.

"This way we can attract more exhibitors," said Hurff. "Actually the trade show is sold out well in advance. We actually have a long waiting list.

It is one of the largest trade shows for fruit growers in the eastern United States, he emphasized.

The three-day fruit programs will be kicked off by presentations by Dr. Don Peterson of the USDA who will discuss new sprayer technlogy, and Dr. John McCarthy of the American Crop Protection Association who will present growers with pesticide registrations: problems and opportunities.

"Deer control has been a big problem for growers," said Mr. William Teitjen, an agricultural agent with Rutgers Cooperative Extension of Warren County. "We will have Mr. Jack Torrence present information on his control method using trained dogs and electric fencing."

Dr. Donald Ricks, Michigan State University, will present the George Goodling Memorial Lecture to lead off the Tuesday afternoon session. His topic will be "Use of Consumer Market Research for Apple Industry Planning," "Building the U.S. Export Market," "Marketing Apple Cider Against E. Coli Scares and Market Promotion" will be discussed prior to adjournment for the annual awards ceremony on Tuesday evening.

"One of the featured speakers on Wednesday morning, Jan. 29, will be Dr. Gene Kupferman, well-known post harvest physiologist from Washington State University," said Teitjen. "He will discuss "Strategies for Preserving Apple Quality and Reducing Cullage."

"Many of the talks on Wednesday will focus on peaches," said Teijen, who is also educational chair for the New Jersey State horticultural Society. Kevin Day, a farm adviser from the heart of peach country in California, will present "Production Practices for Quality Peaches." He will be followed by a panel of eight growers from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Maryland, who will share peach growing innovations. Talks will also be presented on green aphid control, brown rot control, peach rootstocks, and satellite site-specific weather forecasting by specialists from Penn State and Rutgers.

Day will also present a talk entitled, "Practices for Harvesting, Grading and Shipping Peaches" on Thursday morning. Kupferman will follow this with information on "Estimating Storage Life of Apples." The tree fruit program will end Thursday afternoon with presentations on orchard pollination, orchard weed control, bee management and a panel of growers discussing support systems for fruit tree plantings.

The small fruit program will commence Wednesday afternoon and run concurrently with the tree fruit program. Dr. Joe Fiola, specialist from Rutgers Cooperative Extension, will discuss "Minor Crops for the Small Fruit Grower and Update on Strawberry Plasticulture." A panel of growers will also share their experiences in managing U-Pick customers. Dr. Fumiomi Takeda of the USDA will also present information on "Mechanical Harvesting of Raspberries — From Dream to Reality." Presentations will also be given on Thursday on pest management, weed control, crown gall, and IPM of blueberries.

Case Introduces Software Enhancements

RACINE, Wis. — Case Corporation has released an enhanced version of its Case IH Advanced Farming Systems software to speed yield mapping through a feature called Map Express.

Map Express allows farmers to produce maps quickly and with very little work. And for farmers who do not want to produce their own maps, Case is offering customers a free mapping service for this fall's harvest.

Advanced Farming Systems version 2.0 software is included with each Case IH AFS combine factory equipped with yield monitor, differential global positioning satellite antenna, differential GPS receive, moisture sensor, grain-flow sensor, and data cards. Farmers who bought AFS kits for field installation on their combines should also have received the software upgrade.

"This updated software is a powerful package that allows farmers to boost their mapping capability as their experience with the technology grows," said Ed Sechrest, product director, AFS data management. "The comprehensive nature of the software accommodates the complete range of applications for site-specific farming technologies."

Sechrest explained that the new Case IH AFS software has a multi-layering capability. Maps indiciating soil type, pH, seed variety, fertilizer, or herbicide applicaiton patterns can be layered over one another for analysis. The selection of these layers is controlled from a single screen in the software.

Map Express was the primary reason for the second version of mapping software. With Map Express, data gathered by the combine yield monitor and stored on a PC data card can be quickly downloaded to a farmer's personal computer and the software function used to build yield maps. By tracking multiple layers of information, farmers can make educated decisions about reducing inputs while optimizing yields.

"We want farmers to know we'll be here for them this fall, and we'll be here for them as they apply this technology in the future," Sechrest said. Indicative of this is the fact that Case IH AFS software is designed with "open architecture," which means that data can be shared and interchanged with other site-specific products designed to industry standards. This allows farmers to import and export data to their crop consultants, fertilizer dealers, and seed dealers. Date export also allows other machinery and field operations to be included in AFS as the hardware becomes available.

Case IH customers and dealership personnel recently had the opportunity to learn Advanced Farming Systems yield monitor and software operation during training sessions held in several states. Each session drew crowds of more than 100 attendees interested in learning more about Case Corporation's site-specific farming equipment, which utilizes global positioning satellite technology.

State Grange Applauds Commission Decision

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania State Grange hails the Public Utility Commission's (PUC) disapproval Thursday of Bell Atlantic's plan to increase telephone rates in rural areas while reducing them in urban sections of the state.

Brenda Shambaugh, legislative director of the Pennsylvania State Grange, said the commissioners saw the request as an attempt to raise telephone rates even though Bell agreed to a freeze in 1994 under Act. 30.

"Since day one, the Grange opposed Bell's petition because rebalancing would have put an unfair burden of the cost of local telephone service on rural customers," Shambaugh said. "We believe the PUC saw that Bell Atlantic's current residential rates cover its costs, and that the proposal was an attempt to place the risks of competition on those captive ratepayers rather than on its shareholders."

Bell Atlantic, which has more than 4.2 million customers in Pennsylvania, filed a plan with the state PUC in January asking to rebalance telephone rates because the company is expecting increased competition in urban areas for local telephone customers in the near future, according to published reports. Rebalancing is the act of raising rates in one area while reducing them in another, thereby remaining revenue neutral.

"Restructuring Bell's local charges would have meant an increase for a segment of their rural clientele whose rates are not frozen," Shambaugh said. "It seems to us that a rate rebalance creates two classes of customers, which Chapter 30 was enacted to prevent."

As an advocate for rural Pennsylvania, the Grange has been a leading force in the opposition to Bell's attempt to push through rebalancing since the move is geared to protect its investments in urban areas. The Grange battled the plan by testifying at numerous statewide public hearings, as legislative hearings in Harrisburg and before an Adminstrative Law Judge, who just last month recommended to the PUC that they deny Bell's rate request.

"It was especially brazen for Bell to try to justify its plan by saying it will help the phone company become more competitive with new local service rivals," Shambaugh said. "The proposed rates would have let Bell leverage the monopoly it has in rural service at the expense of rural customers.

"This is a major victory for rural customers who, in many cases, would have been held captive had rebalancing been approved," Shambaugh said. "Or, they could have gone without any telephone service at all. Unfortunately, many would have had no choice but to choose the latter option."

Shambaugh said the Grange will continue to monitor rural affairs and will speak out against any future attempts by Bell to seek rebalanced telephone rates.

Retail Opportunity Opens For Md. Farmers

CHARLOTTE HALL, Md. — A Southern Maryland business leader has offered to contribute retail space in a St. Mary's County shopping center for the region's farmers and watermen to sell their products.

This space could also house a health department-approved kitchen that could be used by the region's farmers and watermen to process value-added products.

The Tri-County Council for Southern Maryland and the Southern Maryland Agricultural Commission are organizing a meeting for southern Maryland farmers and watermen who may be interested in selling, consigning, or processing their products for sale through this indoor, year-round farmers' market (or retail farm store) to be located in Great Mills, Md. The retail space is located on Great Mills Road, near Lexington Park.

This meeting will be held on Tuesday, Jan. 7, at 7 p.m. at the Southern Maryland Regional Library, located at the intersection of MD Routes 5 and 6 in Charlotte Hall, Md.

For additional information, contact Candy Walter, agricultural specialist for the Tri-County Council, at (301) 884-2144 or 870-2520.

Four-State Farm Financial Management Workshops Set

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Thanks in part to satellite technology, farmers and farm partners in the Mid-Atlantic area will have opportunity to link up with Cooperative Extension Service farm management specialists in a series of six farm financial management workshops being conducted simultaneously throughout Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, and New York during the next three months.

The workshops are designed to help participants prepare financial statements and four-year plans in line with farm borrower requirements of the 1990 Farm Bill. A two-way satellite television portion of each workshop will feature extension farm management specialists from Penn State University.

Wesley N. Musser, extension farm management specialist at the University of Maryland at College Park, is the coordinator for the Maryland and Delaware workshops. Musser is a professor of agricultural and resource economics.

Workshop dates are Dec. 11, 13 and 18, plus Jan. 22 and Feb. 19 and 26. Most are Wednesday dates; all will run from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. There is a charge of $190 for up to two participants from each farm or business. This cost includes refreshments, lunches, and a notebook of printed materials.

Here is the schedule of workshop locations and contact persons for Maryland:

• Princess Anne — Richard Henson Center at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore. Contact Susan Schoenian, (410) 749-6141; Connie Byler-Hsu or Curt Massey, (410) 651-7930.

• Queenstown — Administration building at the University of Maryland Wye Research and Education Center. Contact David Wilson, (410) 996-5280, or Dian Rowe, (410) 758-0166.

• Keedysville — University of Maryland's Western Maryland Research and Education Center. Contact Dale Johnson, (301) 432-7173, or Lynn Little, (301) 791-1504.

Annual Convention Set For Denver

BOZEMAN, Mont. — The American Simmental Association (ASA) will conduct its 29th annual meeting and convention in Denver, Colo. Jan. 18-19.

The meeting will be held in conjunction with Simmental cattle activities at the prestigious National Western Stock Show and Rodeo.

"We invite all interested members and friends of ASA to participate," said ASA Executive Vice President Jerry Lipsey. "There are a number of critical issues to be discussed during the meeting, and there is a full schedule of Simmental cattle activities at the National Western. Several exciting new programs will be featured during the meeting, dealing with multibreed EPDS, the Herd Handler Software, and carcass merit."

Most convention proceedings, including the annual business meeting, will take place on Jan. 19. The schedule will conclude with an awards banquet that evening at 7 p.m.

All cattle activities are planned and coordinated under the supervision and direction of the Colorado Simmental Association. The Simmental Pen Show is scheduled for Monday, Jan. 20 at 9 a.m. in the Yards. The "One-Vol. IV" Simmental Sale will be held at 6 p.m. the same day. The Simmental Junior Show will begin at 3 p.m. on Jan. 21, and the Open Simmental Show will commence at 8 a.m. on Jan. 22.

Additional convention information may be obtained by calling ASA at (406) 587-4531.

Sanitation Critical For Producer Growers

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Outbreaks of E. coli in lettue, cider, and melons are serving as the wake-up call growers need to improve their sanitation and cooling procedures, according to an Ohio State University food specialist.

The way growers handle raw produce plays an important part in preventing microbial contamination, Winston Bash said. He will be discussing sanitation methods that can help prevent food safety incidents at the 1997 joint meeting of the Ohio Fruit and Vegetable Growers Congress and the Ohio Roadside Marketing Conference.

E. coli is a bacterium normally found in the intestines of mammals. It can take many forms, some of which cause relatively mild illness. But in 1982, a strain labeled O157 was identified. Cider contaminated with this particular strain made 10 people in Connecticut sick in mid-October that year. A similar outbreak occurred in Massachusetts in 1991, and the bacteria is also blamed for several dozen illnesses associated with unpasteurized apple juice on the West Coast.

This is also the same strain of E. coli that killed four children and made hundreds of people ill when they ate undercooked contaminated hamburgers at a fast-food chain in the Pacific Northwest in 1993. The bacteria causes diarrhea and cramping, and, in serious cases, can cause renal failure. Children, the elderly, and anyone who is immuno-comprised are most at risk.

Full prevention measures, such as heating the product to 155 degrees Fahrenheit, would kill the bacteria, but it would also destroy the food product as consumers know it, Bash said.

Instead, Bash recommends producers control the variables they can without changing the flavor or composition of the produce.

The main variable is reducing the temperature of the product. E. coli can't multiply as fast in cold temperatures. In general, salad products should stay below 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

Bash also recommends growers cool harvested produce quickly. "The sooner a grower can get the field heat out of a product, the better," he said.

Some large-scale producers in Ohio use a packing shed to do some preprocessing before the product leaves the field. Cooling abilities range from misting to refrigeration.

Proper cleaning and packaging will also reduce microbial growth.

The joint conference runs Feb. 5-8 at the Toledo Seagate Center. For registration information, contact Mike Pullins at (614) 249-2424.

Patz®
15 YEAR WARRANTY
Manufactured In Pound, Wisconsin
Here is something often overlooked...
Only Patz gives you 45 years of experience with hook-and-eye chain, resulting in a chain so good that others are attempting to copy it.
Many Patz Gutter Cleaner chains are still working well after more than 30 years of use.
After the Patz patent on hook-and-eye chain expired, some other companies have attempted to copy the Patz chain. Some promote 10- and 12-year warranties on chain—but they have not yet had 10 or 12 years of experience with hook-and-eye chain.
Patz has continued to improve its chain for 45 years with special-formula steel, special forging techniques and special steel hardening processes.
Rely on the proven, long-life chain. Patz provides a 15-year chain warranty because so many chains are working well long after 15 years of use.
Better yet, your Patz chain warranty is backed up by a solid, reliable company that has been serving farmers for 45 years with the same family ownership.
Insist on Patz chain!
What thousands of dairyman know: Patz chain is your best buy!

SMALL PACKAGE.

GREAT TRACTOR.

The New White 6045 ROPS. When you're working in and under low overheads, this low profile 45 PTO hp tractor is a great value for today's farmer. The 6045 gives you a low profile straddle mount and a 12F/12R synchronized reverser transmission to change direction in any gear. For reliable power, there's a liquid-cooled diesel engine. And its true center line power front axle with a 50-degree turning angle helps you get around the tight spaces. Plus, the 6045 has a 2-year/2000-hour AGCO warranty on 100% parts and labor, with no deductible. Climb into a 6045 at your local White dealer. And ask about flexible Agricredit financing plans, offering low rates and waiver of interest contracts.

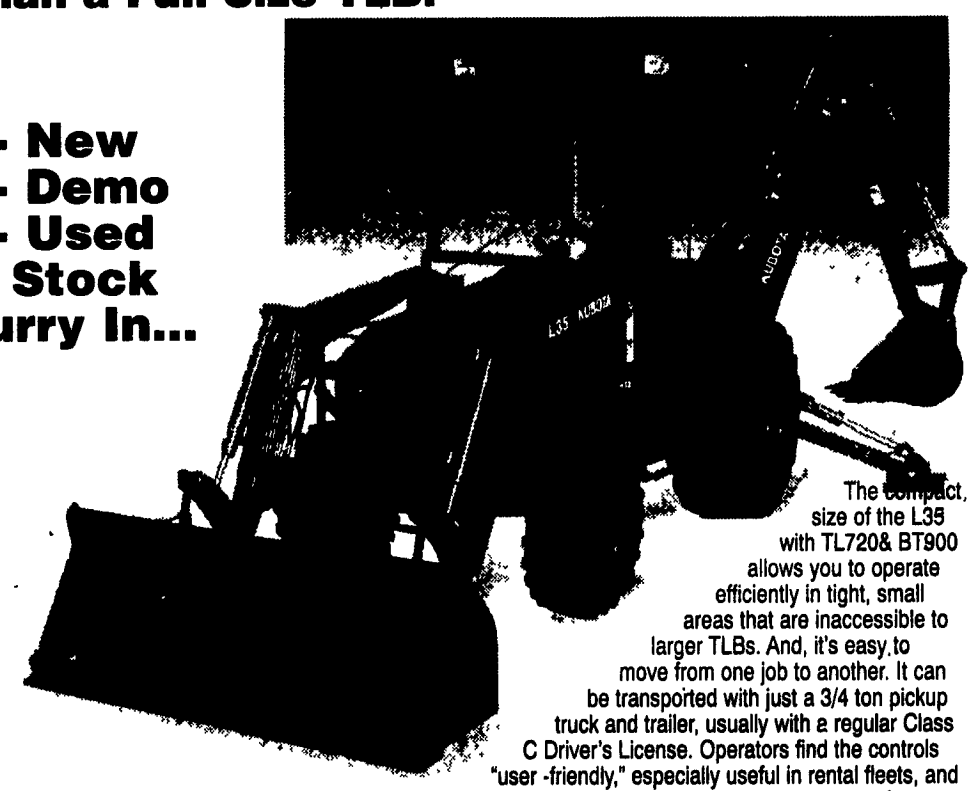
Hurry In...



The compact, size of the L35 with TL720& BT900 allows you to operate efficiently in tight, small areas that are inaccessible to larger TLBs. And, it's easy to move from one job to another. It can be transported with just a 3/4 ton pickup truck and trailer, usually with a regular Class C Driver's License. Operators find the controls "user -friendly," especially useful in rental fleets, and large contractor fleets where operators may go from one piece of equipment to another on a regular basis. The L35 retains the full versatility of a compact with its 3-pt. hitch and PTO for tilling, mowing or box scraper work.
